TWO BATTLES IMMINENT
President Taft Worried
ON THE MEXICAN BORDER

AFTER BATTLE REBELS RETREAT

Second Fight at Banche Ends Like First.

Six Federals, Including Two Lieutenants, Killed in Fight Near Juarez---Rebels Left No Dead or Wounded on the Field.

El Paso, Texas, April 16.—The second battle of Bauche has resulted as the first fought on February 4. The insurrectos left the field and the federals have come back to Juarez.

Whether the insurrectos retired because of lack of water, as on the former occasion, or as a result of a message from Dr. Gomez in Washington relative to peace, is not known.

A message was received here last night by the El Paso junta, however, to be delivered to Francisco I. Madero, and this was sent south in duplicate by two couriers during the night. Whether Madero was near Juarez the junta does not know.

What the message contained, junta officials will not state, but they admit it had to do with peace and will not deny that Dr. Gomez counseled inactivity pending negotiations now on with Mexico City. Soon after the messages went south the insurrectos retired.

Six Federals Dead.

The federals lost six dead, including Lieutenant Miguel Batturoni and Abraham Jiminez and six wounded, including Captain Porfirio Hernandez. The wounded were brought to Juarez during the night. The dead were brought in today.

The federals had fired a bridge on the railroad between Bauche, where the fight occurred, and Juarez. There was no necessity for this in order to block the railroad, however, as the insurrecto train had been wrecked in Bauche as it came from the south. Federals on Thursday placed dynamite under the tracks and the charge blew up the train. The insurrectos had two cars loaded with railroad ties ahead of the locomotive and these cars received the brunt of the damage.

When the insurrectos retired they took their locomotive and some of their cars with them, but left two cars besides those wrecked. Beside the track were some bloody clothes, showing that there had been some dead or wounded. None was left on the field, however.

The Associated Press correspondent found two bodies. One was full of bullet holes. Another body had been rifled by vandals.

General Navarro has not enforced the embargo on Americans crossing to and from Juarez and the town operated its saloons and gambling games as usual today.

To Protect Americans.

United States troops on the Texas side of the river had made extra preparations to prevent Americans getting near the river, if there were a battle in Juarez, but the precautions were not necessary. There was no fighting this morning. The insurrectos and federals ceased their battle near Bauche some time last night.

Early today federal reinforcements sent out from Juarez met the federals returning from the field.

The federals are keeping a strict watch over Juarez tonight. Sentries patrol the streets and soldiers are in the trenches on the outskirts of the town. Federal military officials are not looking for an immediate attack, however, and insurrecto officials in El Paso are of the opinion that there will be no fighting, at least until Gomez's negotiations are concluded.

The insurrectos have insisted that there is no danger of attack and that Madero is not close to Juarez.

Anxiety Over Developments in Mexico Plainly Evident in Washington.

TIDE OF WAR THREATENS AGUA PRIETA AND JUAREZ

Washington Is Informed That Both Border Towns Will Be Scene of Bloody Clashes Today, Endangering the Lives of Americans in Douglas and Juarez --- Taft Warns Rebels and Federals.

Washington, April 16.—Anxiety over developments in Mexico endangering the lives and property of Americans near the boundary line was plainly evident in official circles here tonight. President Taft until nearly midnight tonight received bulletins at the white house from the war department regarding the advance of the federals upon the insurgent forces at Agua Prieta, but retired confident that an attack would not be made before tomorrow.

Dr. Vazquez Gomez was in constant communication with the insurgent junta at El Paso, Texas., who transmitted to him messages from the insurgent army advancing on Juarez. Mindful of the incidents of last week around Agua Prieta, Dr. Gomez telegraphed a message of warning to his constituents to avoid injury to American lives or property. He was advised that the insurrectos had mobilized practically their entire army in Chihuahua under Francisco I. Madero, Jr., to within striking distance of Juarez.

Kept Insurgents Off Juarez.

The message that Dr. Gomez sent to the insurgent forces prevented the attack tonight on Juarez. He attached much importance to the pause of the insurgents and other Mexicans drew much hope from the occurrence.

Senor Oscar Braniff and Senor Esquival Obregon, two business men of Mexico City, who came here unofficially to confer with Dr. Gomez about peace, left tonight for the camp of Francisco I. Madero, Jr. Both men were in conference with Dr. Gomez before they left and received passports through the insurgent lines and letters of introduction to the rebel chief. They also called on Senor de Zamacona, the Mexican ambassador, today.

Dr. Gomez was in communication with Mexico City tonight in an effort to bring influence to bear on the Mexican government and avert a great loss of life at Juarez, which he believes to be inevitable unless the federal garrison there is withdrawn or an armistice arranged. According to his advices the federals are outnumbered nearly two to one and tomorrow almost the entire insurgent army will be concentrated within the vicinity of Juarez. Dr. Gomez hopes that the serious situation at Juarez may be averted by concessions from Mexico City.

U. S. Army Officers Warned.

"Don't cross the American-Mexican border line under any circumstances; if necessary to communicate across the line, do it by civilians," was the purport of instructions telegraphed today by Major General Wood, commanding the army, to the army command in Texas. This explains the use of two civilians in carrying a message to the Mexican federal commander from Colonel Shunk, commanding the United States troops at Agua Prieta.

General Wood has wired instructions that if either the federal or insurgent troops of Mexico enter American territory they are to be disarmed and held, and that everything possible must be done to preserve neutrality. He has sent through the army officers warning to the people of Douglas to keep away from where the firing is going on. Advices received here say that it is reported that the insurgents have built trenches close to the American border.

Fighting Near Agua Prieta.

The war department's messages follow;

Douglas, Ariz., April 16.—Authentic reports indicate action ten miles south of here between the advance guard of federal troops numbering about 1,200 and the insurgent scouts. In all probability an engagement will occur not later than tomorrow. The insurgent forces are holding Agua Prieta and are at present engaged in digging trenches parallel with the national line and about two hundred yards south of the national line. I have warned the insurgents about using these trenches in

SHIP CANAL TO JOIN LAKE ERIE-OHIO RIVER

Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia Counties Back of Project.

Pittsburg, April 16.—The national waterways commission will arrive here tomorrow and for the next three days will inspect the route of the proposed Lake Erie and Ohio river ship canal and the work of the Pittsburg flood commission.

The canal proposition is unique. Over fifty counties in western Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia are to be asked to issue bonds for the building of the canal, estimated to cost upward of $50,000,000. This fund is to be turned over to the national government and the work done by United States engineers. Already the legislatures of Pennsylvania and West Virginia have passed the necessary laws enabling the counties to issue the bonds, while the matter is under consideration in the Ohio body.

WITH ALL MEXICO ERUPTING, DIAZ CALLS FOR VOLUNTEERS

Mexico City, April 16.—A general call for volunteers to serve for a period of six months was posted in this capital today. The call is made to all citizens between the ages of 18 and 45 years who desire to lend their services to the country. The pay offered is one peso (50 cents) a day, besides clothing and equipment. The customary inducement of advancement in rank and pay to those who prove worthy is included.

The activity in the war department overshadows today the much talked of plans for peace. Both Mexicans and Americans in the capital were inclined to believe that the end of the revolution is far off. Officially, Mexico is not treating with the rebels.

The necessity for the call for volunteers has been created not alone by the activity of the revolutionists in the north, but throughout the country; with the exception of a few states, the movement has grown with striking rapidity within the last few weeks in the southern part of the republic. The greatest activity has been displayed in the states of Tabasco, Yucutan and Puebla.

In Zacatecas, the capital of the state, an attack was made, and in Durango they continue to destroy bridges on the International railroad between Durango and Torreon as rapidly as the railroad can build them.

BAD CHARACTERS INFEST NEW P. O.

Don't Loiter There, Advises Rev. Ham.

Many Soda Water Stands Are Birthplaces of "White Slave" Traffic, Declares Preacher. Wants the Recorder's Court Downtown.

Severely censuring the conditions existing at the postoffice and at certain soda water stands in the city, declaring this district the gathering place for men and women of immoral tendencies, Rev. J. W. Ham, assistant pastor of the Baptist Tabernacle, in the prelude to his sermon last night called upon the police authorities to put plain clothes men at work to break up this idling, loitering class, described by him as "the gateway to hell."

He warned the young men and women of his congregation not to loiter in this district, for said he "it is hardly safe for a young man or woman of clean morals and unsullied character to go into this section of our city and tarry for a moment, without either being accosted or placed under the ban of suspicion." The prelude is as follows:

"It is a burning shame that right here in the heart of the best governed city on the American continent today is a cancer eating at the very vitals of purity of the young manhood and womanhood of our city.

"For several months I have given almost daily study to the problem of the social evil as presented in certain sections of our city. The data I have in hand is sufficient to reach my present conclusion.

"I wish to speak of the postoffice district. The corridors of the federal building and the side-walks of same have become so infested with men and women of immoral tendencies and purposes that it is hardly safe for a young man or woman of clean morals and unsullied character to go in this section of our city and tarry for a moment without either being accosted or placed under the ban of suspicion. There are certain hours in the day that traffic in this line is very quiet, and yet there are other hours of greatly increased activities.

"Not only is this true of the postoffice, but it is also true of other places. I know of six Greek or Italian (I never know which) soda fountains located in different sections, most all of which are on side streets leading from the main arteries of travel, whose sole revenue, almost, consists of trade from young men and women meeting for immoral purposes. This is patent to even the casual observer. This element would not be tolerated in their loitering in a soda fount in Whitehall or Peachtree streets. They seek cover under the roof of a foreign nationality who are noted for secrecy and attention to their own business, and in matters of this kind they always 'know their business.'

"Hundreds of times within the recent past have I seen young girls going into these places and spending two or three hours over some soft drink, then presently leaving with an attendant, who is in most cases a libertine. Several houses are maintained in the heart of the city who cater to this class.

"Oh, how many times I have seen unsophisticated girls being lured into these places and taught by the more experienced, 'the easiest way'. Presently she finds it easier not to work at honest toil, and wear one suit a whole season. She joins the ever increasing throng of moral lepers. I have recently had to deal with several of these girls, two of whose offspring have presented problems, as well as heartaches.

"I have likewise witnessed, on the other hand, the coming to our city of pure, strong young men of noble ideals, who would join the church on arrival, and ere long I have found them in the toils of this cigarette smoking, beer guzzling crowd of moral degenerates that infest these soda stands and the postoffice corners and corridors.

"Something needs to be done. We need plain clothes policemen in these sections to prevent the congregating or loitering of this element, who are but the gateways to hell. There is a growing need of some organization, such as a society for the prevention of crime, who would employ a superintendent with police powers to break up these nests of vice and save the young manhood and womanhood now coming to our city so fast, and who are the preys of this class. Such places as I have mentioned are the birth-places of the white slave traffic.

"The downtown 'masher' has gotten to be such a nuisance that I am in favor of the removal of Judge Broyles and his court into this section, possibly in the new city hall, where he can more effectually cope with this growing problem.

"My actuating motive for speaking plainly tonight, my friends is for the sake of many of you young people who hear me, whom I have seen just beginning to slip into this zone, where ideals are low and ever ready stands the auto or taxi, waiting for you to take a joy ride, if you will but pay the price, and I warn you, out of a heart that has been made to bleed and ache recently over some tragic revelations, not to frequent the soda founts I have mentioned, or be seen loitering around the postoffice. Your honor, your character, and your reputation is at stake. May God help you to take the warning!"

BERNARD BOWLES SHOT BY HIS COMPANION

Cobb County Youth Victim of Serious Accident—"Unloaded Gun" Gets in Its Work.

Marietta, Ga., April 16.—(Special.)—Bernard Bowles, the 16-year-old son of Mrs. Annie Bowles, who lives in the Sardis settlement six miles east of town, was severely hurt by an accidental gun shot Saturday afternoon. The gun was in the hands of another young man, who did not know it was loaded.

The entire load entered Bowles' jaw, breaking the bone and tearing the flesh fearfully. Dr. C. T. Nolan had the young man brought in to his sanitarium in town, and operated on him late Saturday night, and it is thought he will recover.

LONG-DISTANCE TEST OF ARMY AIRSHIPS IN TEXAS UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE U. S. SIGNAL CORPS

San Antonio, Texas, April 16.—One of the greatest long-distance tests in the history of aviation will take place in Texas in about ten days. The flight will be from San Antonio to Galveston and return, a total distance of about 480 miles. Two machines are expected to take part in the effort to make the journey, one the latest Wright and the other, newest of the Curtiss machines. Each machine will be required to carry one military passenger for the entire flight. The flight will be under the supervision of the signal corps of the United States army, with Major George O. Squier of the corps as the officer in direct charge of the test. Philip Parmalee, the Wright aviator, will operate the Wright machine, while Eugene Ely will be the navigator of the Curtiss biplane. First Lieutenant Benjamin D. Foulois, the best known of the army aviators, will be the passenger in the Wright machine, while the officer who will accompany Ely will be either First Lieutenant Paul W. Beck, Second Lieutenant George M. Kelly, or Second Lieutenant John C. Walker, Jr., the last three named being the officers designated by the war department to study aviation under Glenn H. Curtiss. The proposed flight will be conducted according to plans outlined by Brigadier General Allen, the chief signal officer of the army. The flight will be in the nature of a military problem, and conditions such as would exist in actual warfare will be simulated, such, for instance, as an invasion of Texas by a hostile force which had succeeded in taking up a strong position between San Antonio and Galveston, cutting off land and wire communication between the army in Galveston and the one in San Antonio.

TIGER PATRONS RECEIVE JOLT

Run on Saloon While Chief Had Charge.

Chief Austin and His Force Swoop Down on Boyd Foote's Yamacraw Place --- While in Charge of Saloon, Officers Besieged by Thirsty Customers.

Savannah, Ga., April 16.—(Special.) Following the raid of Boyd Foote's place in Yamacraw this afternoon, the raiding officers had a peculiar experience. Chief-of-Police Austin and Chief-of-Detectives Murphy were caled upon to serve drinks over the bar.

When police, all in plain clothes, swooped down on Foote's place they found everything running full blast. The saloon was crowded and drinks were being served just as though it were not Sunday, or more technically speaking, just as though Savannah was not a city in a prohibition state.

The place was cleared by the police and Foote was sent to the police station. Chief Austin and Detective Murphy were behind the bar taking an inventory of the stock of liquor, when customers of Foote who had not heard of the raid, entered. One called for a half pint of whisky of his favorite brand, and handed Detective Murphy a quarter for the bottle. Another bought a bottle of beer from Chief Austin, but neither man was allowed to keep his purchase. The money was returned and the liquid refreshments were put back in stock. The customers appeared crestfallen when it was explained to them that they had made purchases of contraband goods from minions of the law.

The Savannah authorities will not permit violations of the prohibition law on Sundays.

STRIPLING GETS HEARING TODAY

Pardon Application Before Governor Brown.

Stripling Will Be Represented by Attorneys Miller and McLaughlin --- Relatives of Cornett Are Opposing the Pardon.

At 11 o'clock this morning Governor Brown will hear the argument of attorneys for and against the application for pardon filed by Thomas Edgar Stripling, the former Danville chief-of-police who killed W. J. Cornett in Harris county fourteen years ago and escaped shortly after a sentence of life imprisonment had been imposed upon him.

In view of the fact that the prison commission has unanimously recommended that he be pardoned, there is even greater interest felt in the case than was aroused when the sensational announcement was made in The Constitution that the honored and respected chief-of-police at Danville had been arrested as the man who escaped from the jail in Harris county fourteen years ago.

At the hearing before the governor Stripling will be represented by Attorneys T. T. Miller and Frank MacLaughlin, of Columbus, who so successfully conducted his case before the prison commision. The relatives of Cornett who are opposing the pardon will be represented by Attorney H. C. Cameron, of Columbus; Isaac Oakes, of Lawrenceville, and John McClelland, of Atlanta.

C. Lowenthal Writes.

Regarding the Stripling case, C. Lowenthal, of Athens, writes as follows:

"Can Governor Brown afford to pardon Stripling? With his ever-ready gun would he not become a menace to every home and fireside in whatever community he might settle?"

C. F. Young, of Athens, says:

"Editor Constitution: I am in favor of Stripling's pardon. I regard him as an honest, upright gentleman who never harbored murder in his heart. Those who contend that if he was a murderer fourteen years ago he is a murderer today, have probably forgotten what happened to David, who had his own brother killed in the front of battle. I wonder if they think he was ever forgiven.

"From the record of Mr. Stripling's life before and after the crime, I am sure that when Governor Brown takes up the case he will not have to spend much time considering in his well-balanced head what action to take. After Monday I expect to see where he has been pardoned, and I am going to thank the prison commissioners who recommended a pardon, and I expect to thank Governor Brown."

A Letter From Athens.

R. W. Solesbee, of Athens writes as follows:

"Editor Constitution: I have been a reader of your paper for many years and have almost got to the point where I think I cannot do without it. I have been keeping up with the Stripling case and I think he should be

TEMPER SHOWN BY DAUGHTERS

Contest for the President General Is Getting Hot.

The Friends of Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Story Are Exchanging Compliments --- Suit Brought Against Miss Finch for $1,500 Causes Sensation.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, April 16.—(Special.)—Washington hotels tonight are crowded with handsomely-gowned women and vibrant with conversation about the coming test of strength between the Scott and Story factions for the office of president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Next to the contest over this office, the greatest sensation was caused by the erroneous report that the east portico of the Continental Memorial Hall was sinking so badly that the handsome memorial pillars which cost $2,000 each were in danger of being destroyed. This rumor has been corrected. The portico is sinking slightly, as it was erected on made ground, but there is declared to be no reason for alarm.

Georgia Delegates for Mrs. Scott.

The Georgia delegates are committed to Mrs. Matthew T. Scott, as opposed to Mrs. William Cumming Story. The former has reserved headquarters in the Arlington hotel, and here she is receiving her enthusiastic supporters. Mrs. Story, who has been the chief insurgent for these past several years, is quartered at the Willard with her husband, two handsome sons, and her friend, Miss Florence Finch, of New York.

The suit brought yesterday by Mrs Julia H. Moody, of New York, against Miss Finch for $1,500 to recover an advance of money for which she claims to hold two promissory notes, has created something of a sensation. Miss Finch, in her reply, states that the amount has been paid back, but that she has been unable to recover the collateral or get back the notes. She characterizes the move as a political canard, intended to injure Mrs. Story's candidacy.

"'The opposition,' as the defendant in the suit pleases to call us," retorted daughters who are close to Mrs. Matthew T. Scott, "never heard of the alleged debt of Miss Finch to Mrs. Moody until we read the papers today. The matter is beneath a reply from us, and we presume that as no woman would go into a lawsuit without some reason therefor, the matter lies between Miss Finch and Mrs. Moody for settlement."

Statement for Mrs. Scott.

Mrs. Scott's adherents said:

"We have this election won by an overwhelming majority. The states of Alabama, Arizona, Georgia, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Michigan, Mis-

FIRE IS PLANNED FROM EVERY ANGLE ON FREE LIST BILL

Republican Minority Will Try to Block the Swift Progress of House Democrats.

BITTER FIGHT IS COMING OVER THE WOOL SCHEDULE

It Is Said That Senator Bailey Will Aid Republicans in Their Efforts to Prevent Reductions in the Most Indefensible Schedule of the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Law.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, April 16.—(Special.)—Following the consideration of the Canadian reciprocity bill, which will be concluded by Wednesday, the house ways and means committee will report other tariff legislation.

The next bill will provide for radical reductions in the wool schedule, admitted to be the most indefensible schedule in the whole list. Even in his Winona speech praising the Payne-Aldrich tariff, President Taft admitted that some of its schedules might be a trifle high, particularly in the wool schedule.

Not only will the duty on woolen manufactures be greatly reduced, but it is proposed to put raw wool on the free list. This latter step is a radical departure, and it is expected to stir up the farmers of the middle and far west, Texas and Wyoming.

Bailey Will Aid Republicans.

Free raw wool will be bitterly opposed by a faction in the democratic party, headed by Senator Bailey, of Texas, and by the republican contingent, led by Senator Warren, of Wyoming, who is himself the owner of hundreds of thousands of sheep. The annual wool clip from the ranches of Senator Warren probably equals that of any other wool grower in the United States. Free raw wool can only be secured after a bitter fight, if at all. A lively fight will be made on this provision, nominally in the name of the farmer.

So far in the extraordinary session of congress it has been plain sailing for the well-organized democratic majority in the house, but in the view of the strong and healthy minority there are breakers ahead.

Democratic leaders refer with pride to the achievement of passing the bill for popular election of United States senators and the campaign publicity bill in two legislative days, and to bringing before the house the Canadian reciprocity agreement with assurances of its ratification by an overwhelming majority by the middle of this week. To all these features of the legislative program, however, there has been little opposition. The wonder of it to the experienced observer was the demonstration of the smoothly-running democratic machine.

Free List to Cause a Check.

But by what is to follow—the free list bill, approved by the democratic caucus and favorably reported by the new committee on ways and means—the rapid pace of legislative progress is expected to receive a sudden check.

Reciprocity discussion begun Saturday furnished an opportunity for the minority leaders to flash a signal of their intention and make it clear that the bill placing on the free list manufactured articles in demand by the farmers of the country will be fought as stubbornly as any proposed democratic tariff measures ever were opposed in the halls of congress. The majority leaders realize the bill cannot be rushed through, and they are preparing to meet the vigorous assaults upon it in a prolonged debate.

Chairman Underwood, of the ways and means committee, intends to submit to the house the committee's report on the free list on the closing day of the reciprocity debate so that it may be called the following day.

The tariff debate, it is expected, will begin at once and it is the hope of the democrats that the bill can be put upon its passage within two weeks.

To Assail From Every Angle.

The determination of the minority leaders to assail it from every angle doubtless will result in keeping the measure before the house for a much longer time.

The minority members of the ways and means committee considering the proposed free list voted solidly against it, maintaining that it was a hastily-framed measure, ill-advised, and not sufficiently backed up with information relating to the revenues concerned.

Furthermore, it was pointed out that the tariff board had not been consulted. That Mr. Mann, the minority leader, will conduct a stirring fusillade of argument against the bill is beyond all question, and Mr Payne, who was chairman of the old ways and means committee, will be allied with him in directing the attack.

This will be but the beginning of tariff excitement, as the democrats already are preparing revised wool and cotton schedules to be presented as soon as possible, and later on in the session the agricultural schedule will be tackled, and then will come again the controversy over the high cost of living. With all this in prospect, not to mention the proposed Arizona and New Mexico statehood bill, anti-injunction legislation, reapportionment and appropriation bills, the present outlook is that the house will be kept busy until well into the summer.

Legislation Ready for Senate.

Two important pieces of legislation are ready for the senate, which resumes tomorrow, but the senate is not ready to consider any legislation, and to all appearances it is making no haste to be in shape for the consideration of house bills. The senate committees are not yet named, and when it meets tomorrow it is probable that another adjournment will be taken until Thursday. One of the senate leaders, when asked how soon the committees would be ready, replied:

"Well, we are on the defensive in regard to the tariff, and I guess we are in no hurry to appoint committees. The senate will take its time."

The prospects, however, are good for the passage by the senate of the popular election of senators and campaign publicity bills. There is considerable new progressive material in the senate and the popular election of senators is sure to meet with a more favorable reception than it did in the last congress, where it received a majority, but not the necessary two-thirds majority.

ON HIS WAY BACK AFTER TEXAS FIGHT

"Weather Hot and Everything Else," Declares Broughton.

Dr. Len G. Broughton, who has been engaged in a warm affair with the Houston Y. M. C. A., left that city last night and will arrive in Atlanta tomorrow. In a note received by Rev. J. W. Ham, Dr. Broughton says: "This has been a great fight. You don't know what a fight in Texas means. The weather is hot and everything else. The whole affair was caused by my refusal to leave out prohibition when I spoke. Will leave here Sunday night. Have had great meeting."

Dr. Broughton went to Houston over a week ago at the invitation of the Houston Young Men's Christian Association, to deliver several addresses under their auspices. When he arrived in Houston he was questioned as to the character of the intended addresses, and requested to omit all reference to prohibition. State-wide prohibition will be voted upon by the people of Texas on July 22.

When Dr. Broughton refused to accede to the request of the Y. M. C. A. to omit reference to the prohibition they immediately refused to have him appear under their auspices. Instead of returning home, Dr. Broughton announced that he would deliver the addresses he had come to Houston to make under his own auspices, and did so.

Following his action, the ministers of Houston held a meeting, at which they indorsed the move he had made, and deplored the action of the Y. M. C. A.

According to the Houston Chronicle, twenty-nine pastors were at this meeting, and when a vote was taken upon resolutions condemning the action of the organization twenty-four of the twenty-nine voted that the resolutions be passed. The remaining five stated that they did not vote as did the others because they did not wish to be drawn into the controversy between the Y. M. C. A. and the Atlanta minister.

The resolutions, condensed, expressed surprise that the Y. M. C. A. had changed its views as to the advisability of state-wide prohibition, as they had at first been active in supporting the movement, then had changed and in a statement issued to the public, condemned the plan. They also expressed sorrow that the Broughton affair had come to pass, and ended by hoping that the association would speedily change its views.

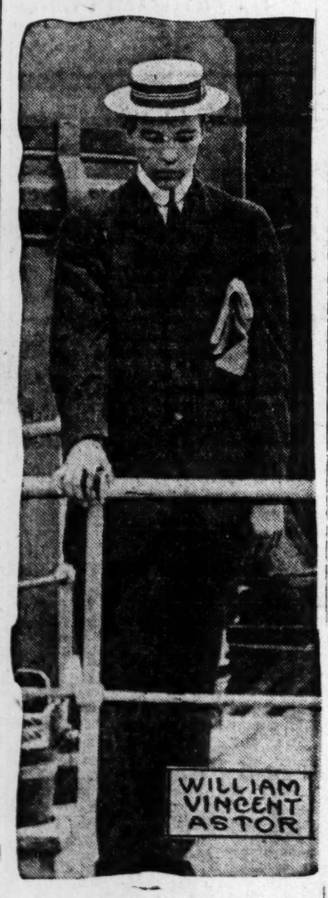

Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary.

Waycross, Ga., April 16.—(Special.)—A woman's auxiliary of the Waycross Young Men's Christian Association will be organized at a meeting here Tuesday afternoon. State Secretary J. V. Read, of Atlanta, will attend the meeting and assist in the organization.

Woodmen Unveil Monument.

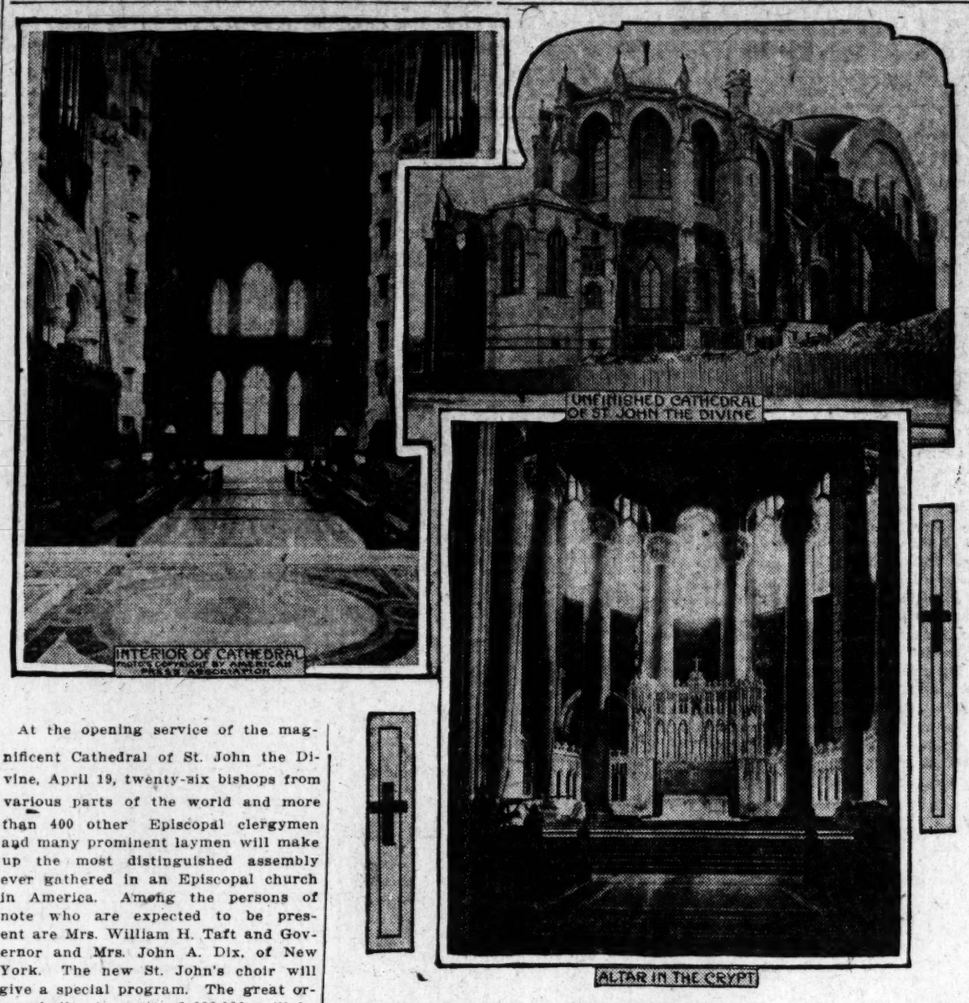

Athens, Ga., April 16.—(Special.)—This afternoon the Woodmen of the World of the local camp, assisted by the members of the uniformed rank at Gainesville and quite a number from Atlanta, performed the beautiful unveiling ceremony attendant upon the showing of the monument erected to the memory of the late J. T. Parker and W. P. Vondereau.

ASTOR, MILLION HEIR, TO WED MILLION HEIRESS

New York society is expecting the formal announcement in a few days of the engagement of two of its most conspicuous young members. After an ardent youthful courtship of nearly a year it is tacitly admitted that W. Vincent Astor, only son of Colonel John Jacob Astor, has won the heart and hand of Miss Catherine L. Hamersley, who, with her brother, L. Gordon, inherited millions from several members of their family. Vincent Astor, his father's chum and destined to be the principal heir of the hundred or more millions of real estate in the family, is one of the most sensibly educated young men of the city. Instead of the frills of society his training has been practical, fitting him to take charge some day of the immense estate which will come to him under the custom of the Astor family. It is a tradition of this family that the head of it personally directs his vast property, devoting constant study to its improvement. Miss Catherine Hamersley is one of the two children of the late J. Hooker Hamersley, who, marrying late in life, died about nine years ago. His wife soon followed him.

FOUR HUNDRED CLERGYMEN TO ATTEND OPENING OF THE CATHEDRAL OF ST. JOHN THE DIVINE

At the opening service of the magnificent Cathedral of St. John the Divine, April 19, twenty-six bishops from various parts of the world and more than 400 other Episcopal clergymen and many prominent laymen will make up the most distinguished assembly ever gathered in an Episcopal church in America. Among the persons of note who are expected to be present are Mrs. William H. Taft and Governor and Mrs. John A. Dix, of New York. The new St. John's choir will give a special program. The great organ, built at a cost of $60,000, will be heard for the first time. This is said to be the finest pipe organ in the United States. The cathedral, which crowns an eminence known locally as the Acropolis, is still uncompleted, and construction work will continue for years. Only three churches in the world are larger than this edifice, which when completed, will become one of the most prominent landmarks in New York.

MISS PAVITT WEARS HAREM JUST TO PROVE SHE'S GAME

The mysterious wearer of the Harem skirt wilted before a Constitution reporter Saturday afternoon, giving her name and part of her history and the whys and wherefores of her adopting the new emblem of woman's rights. She divulged all necessary information as sweet and nice as could be expected.

She was met in a stairway on Peachtree street, where she had gone on matters of business. The reporter introduced himself and explained his errand. The maiden demurred at first, but finally divulged all.

She proved to be Miss Hazel Pavitt, aged 21, of 42 Logan avenue. She originally came from Chicago, moving with her parents to Atlanta two years ago. She is studying music at one of Atlanta's conservatories, and intends entering concert work shortly. She is a very talented girl, but is imbued with a fad that has brought her much notoriety lately. Asked why she was wearing the skirt, she said:

"Oh, I was the first to wear a hobble skirt in Atlanta, and I just couldn't let anyone get ahead of me on the Harem skirt. Don't you think it looks nice?" and so saying, she tripped lightly across the room, giving full play to the pantaloon effect.

"Sure," agreed the reporter, "it's a dream. But, Miss Pavitt, do you intend adopting the style for good?"

"Oh, no," she answered, "I'll only wear it awhile, just to show Atlanta that I'm game, and give them a taste of style. Then I'll go back to the conventional skirt."

Miss Pavitt said her Harem skirt was imported from Chicago.

The reporter wanted a photograph, and in an outspoken manner asked for one.

"I haven't one of the skirt," she said.

"Well, would you mind posing for one?" she was asked.

"Certainly I would," she retorted.

"I'll tell you what I'll do," said the reporter, "I'll guarantee to walk three blocks with you to a photographer if you'll pose for a picture"—

"Done," she cried, "I don't believe you're game."

But he was. He marched across the viaduct, into Whitehall and to the studio of Wesley Hirshburg with the girl. They reached their destination unmolested. It was remarkable the lack of notice the skirt was given.

RESURRECTED MAN WILL BE PERFECT

Dr. Dunbar Ogden Preaches on Interesting Theme.

Easter morning services at the Central Presbyterian church were attended by a congregation that filled the church, and the pastor, Dr. Dunbar Ogden, preached a splendid and appropriate sermon on the subject, "The Resurrection Body."

It was an answer to the question of the ages—with what body will man appear resurrected?—and Dr. Ogden answered it with the marvelous passage on this subject from Paul's letter to the Corinthians.

Man will not appear at the resurrection in the body that was his on earth, said Dr. Ogden, but in a form gloriously perfected by the divine purpose and adapted to the realm of his future existence. The people of earth when raised up will not recognize their loved ones and friends by looking into the familiar faces, but the recognition will be one of deeper significance—a recognition of the spiritual bond, the persistence of personality as unmistakable to this changed vision as were the features of flesh on earth to the eyesight capable only of beholding material things.

"In handling the question of man's resurrection," Dr. Ogden continued, "Paul did not deal with it on a basis of Christ's resurrection, for the reason that His body had not been subject to corruption, so that it came forth in life again just as He had walked a few days before on earth, and therefore the resurrection of Christ was unique and not to be likened to the resurrection of man. Paul takes three illustrations, one the grain of wheat, which when sown must first decay in order to come forth again in new life. But that new life is of a wholly different form, and from this Paul has drawn his conclusion."

There is nothing in the words of Paul on the subject of resurrection which says that man will be raised up in the same body he had on earth, said Dr. Ogden, and there is nothing in his answer to the questions and the doubts of the Corinthians to whom he was writing that conflicts with the science. Before Paul's matchless and inspired reasoning all scientific objections must fade into nothingness, Dr. Ogden declared. The final answer to the question, according to the scriptures, is, and must always be, that there is in man the undying and eternal germ of life, and that when brought forth again after death in resurrected form God gives this life a form adapted to its glorified existence.

Like all of Dr. Ogden's sermons, the discourse was marked throughout by a strict and earnest adherence to the scriptures, and it was a masterful exposition of the great truth so logically and clearly taught by the apostle Paul.

THEATERS

"Three Twins."
(At the Orpheum.)

"Three Twins," which will open its three-day engagement at the Orpheum theater tonight, is one of the best musical comedies that has ever been produced. Its run in Chicago of five months at the Whitney Opera House, and of one year at The Herald Square Theater in New York, where the "S. R. O." sign was displayed nightly, certainly gives it claim to this title. "Three Twins," is a musical comedy with a plot and many novel features. The music titillates and tantalizes and the witty lines and adept clowning excites one to laughter. Mr. Gaites has lavishly costumed the beautiful show girls.

The company is headed by Victor Morley, who created the part, and Bessie Clifford. They are supported by Edward Wade, Edward Bower, Frank Smith, Helen DuBois, Estell Colbert and a chorus of 60 people.

Keith Vaudeville.
(At the Forsyth.)

Easter week will start at the busy Forsyth, with a clever bill of noted vaudeville artists, and one of the largest advance sales of seats and reservation lists the theater has ever had.

The Easter week bill is of quality. Mme. Violet Besson, the famous English actress, who has created such a furore in vaudeville, will be the star. Mme. Besson will present the intensely dramatic playlet "The Woman Who Knew," supported by one of the cleverest combinations of dramatic people in vaudeville. Harry Fox and the Millership Sisters are going to be favorites. This trio of singers and dancers are finishing out their season in vaudeville and when the new season rolls around will be stars in musical comedy. Leona Thurber and Harry Madison are already liked in Atlanta. The charming comedienne and the eccentric acrobatic comedian have made good. Spissell Brothers and Company, the grotesque eccentrics, will be popular and the novelty of Monroe Hopkins, Lola Axtell and their associates will add to the merit of the bill. The Bader LaVelle troupe of cyclists and Sartello, the cartoonist, will help wonderfully.

Bunting Stock Company.
(At the Grand.)

Tonight the Grand stock company, with Emma Bunting back in the leading role, opens the fifth week of one of the most successful stock seasons in the history of the Atlanta stage with "Lena Rivers," the play in which Miss Bunting scored so heavily last year. Under the direction of Warren F. Hill, "Lena Rivers" has been given the most magnificent staging, and the scenic effects will surpass anything ever witnessed on the local stock stage.

"Brewster's Millions."
(At the Lyric.)

The production of "Brewster's Millions" at the Lyric all this week, beginning tonight, is an event of more than passing interest, as it marked the introduction, into the strictly dramatic field, of Frederic Thompson, the creator and builder of New York's great Hippodrome with its wonderful productions, and Luna Park, the stupendous and magnificent resort on Coney Island. The fame of Frederic Thompson has resounded from sea to sea, because of what he has done and it has all been so well done that it stands as a monument to his cleverness and ability. The star part—that of Montgomery Brewster—is played by Carl Gerard, one of the very best of the younger generation of American actors, well and favorably known throughout the country. The supporting company includes Grace Nile, Louise Sanford, Walter T. Fisher, Earl Christie, Richard Morgan, Den Wilkes, Marguerite Slavin, Nestor Lennon, Jane Wallace and 20 others.

Vaudeville.
(At the Bijou.)

The week beginning this afternoon at the Bijou gives splendid promise. The special novelty feature of the bill will be the "Three Great Aitkens," presenting a weird novelty entitled "A Night on Crocodile Isle." This is an original, spectacular and sensational novelty act arraying much special scenery, and put on with electrical and mechanical effects that are very striking. Lottie Glenmore and company, will offer her screamingly funny farce entitled "The President of the Ananias Club." Williams and Butterworth, "Those Two Dancing White Folks in Black and Brown," will sing and dance, and the Rayhardou trio will furnish the musical end of the entertainment, in a novelty act entitled "The Street Singers." Charles LaSalle promises new illustrated songs.

"The Chocolate Soldier."
(At the Grand.)

An analysis of the causes for the remarkable popularity of "The Chocolate Soldier," which comes to the Grand next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and its effective appeal to all classes of theatergoers would quickly discover one of the most dramatic and humorous stories known in comic opera form as might have been expected from an author of George Bernard Shaw's reputation. Although the Viennese Oscar Straus has woven about the incidents of the tale much music that causes the pulse to beat time to it, and has so caught the spirit of Shaw's humor that the music often tells it, yet in the moments of deepest interest some of the most brilliant of his flutters of notes passed unheeded. At the close of one of the most melodious of love duets in the first act there is a suggestion of impending tragedy that hushes applause and makes the listener pause for the unknown action that is felt to be coming; again in the final act Nadina sings the first part of the "Letter Duet" to a rhythmic melody that gives no suggestion of the coming of her absent lover, but there is the dramatic sense in the situation suggesting something soon to happen and the listener again waits in expectation though these same notes are applauded many times over a few moments later when repeated.

Schiller Players.
(At the Lyric.)

Monday Harry Downey at the Lyric, will be ready to list reservations for the opening of the Schiller Players on Monday, April 24, in David Belasco's "The Girl of the Golden West." Everything will be ready for the opening, with a perfect Atlanta built and painted production of the wonderful play, and a combination of dramatic talent second to none. The summer scale of prices at the Lyric is going to be popular. At matinees on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoon, the entire reserved seat section on the lower floor and balcony will be 25 cents; admission to the balcony will be 15 cents. At night the entire reservation in the balcony will be 25 cents; general admission 50 cents. The lower floor will be divided, 50 cents for the front rows and 35 cents for the back rows. At matinees box seats will be 50 cents and at night a quarter more. The gallery will be 10 cents matinee and night and reserved seats for the colored folks at 15 cents for either performance.

MORMONS MOBBED IN GREAT BRITAIN

John Bull Won't Stand for the "Latter Day Saints."

Birkenhead, England, April 16.—The anti-Mormon campaign led to serious disorders here today. An organized demonstration against Mormonism was carried out and an ultimatum was issued requiring the Mormon missionaries to quit the town within eight days. Later a great crowd attacked the Mormon meeting house and stoned and smashed windows. The police had great difficulty in restoring order. Two persons were injured and five were arrested.

In January W. P. Monson, chief of the Mormon missionaries in England, addressed a letter to the home secretary, Winston Spencer Churchill, seconding the request of certain English clergy that the home office investigate Mormonism in England. Monson declared that the Mormons were being persecuted. An anti-Mormon campaign was organized at Liverpool by the bishop of Liverpool and other prominent churchmen. The object was the expulsion from England of the Mormon missionaries, who were charged with sending many recruits, chiefly girls, to the United States. The movement was taken up by the clergy of other cities.

STREET CAR HITS CAB AND UNEARTHS TIGER

A street car, a cab and a street awning, all combined to discover a blind tiger last night. The street car was running down Mitchell street toward Magnolia street. The cab was standing outside a store, in which the driver had gone. The awning covered the window of the store. The store is near where the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic track crosses the street. The horse, which had been left unhitched by the driver, pushed the cab onto the car track just as the trolley car came up. The result was the cab was thrown onto the sidewalk, where the horse kicked and tore loose from his harness.

As he started to run, the cab was jerked into the awning support, which caused the iron rods and heavy cloth to fall on top the vehicle, resulting in the demolishment of the latter.

The policeman on the beat came up at that moment, and, thinking, perhaps, someone was in the cab, unconscious, he pulled away the awning and then looked the remnants of the one-time cab over. Inside were eight or ten smashed pint bottles of whisky that had been full before the smash-up. The whisky was lost. The cabman was gone, and the police are still looking for him. They have his number.

CHRISTIAN SERVICE AT HOME URGED BY CLIFFORD GROOVER

Speaking on "Christian Science in Regard to the Children's Home Society," Clifford Groover, of the society, last night delivered a strong and interesting address at Moore Memorial church before a large number of people.

Saying in his introductory remarks that he hoped the people of all denominations would realize the scope and purpose of the society, he went on to take as an example of the lack of real sacrifices in the lives of most professed Christians the interview of Jesus and the young ruler who was deeply concerned about his relationship to God and the enjoyment of a life of blessedness in the hereafter, but who overlooked the fact that such relationship necessitated the spending of his life here and now unselfishly in the interest of his fellow men.

"There is many a man today," said he, enjoying the possession of great wealth who, not having caught the spirit of Jesus, and learned to use his wealth in the uplifting of humanity, is missing the greatest of all opportunities, the opportunity of Christian service, and is making the great refusal of the rich young ruler. We admire the missionaries because of the great sacrifices they are making in order that the kingdoms of this world may become the kingdoms of our God; but there is no reason under the sun why there should not be just as great a consecration of life on the part of Christian people here at home; yet the number is all too large of those who are not willing to part with a fair portion of their material substance in order that the best interests of the kingdom may be served. The great need today, as I see it, is to get Christ into our lives and perform the needed tasks of the hour—in the spirit of Christianity."

In pointing out one of the ways in which a Christian family might be of incalculable service to the state and to the kingdom of God, Mr. Groover said:

"There is no greater opportunity offered to Christian homes today for real service to the Master than through opening its doors to the unfortunate, homeless children of the state, and bringing to bear upon their growing lives the transforming influence of Jesus Christ."

Following Mr. Groover's address, Dr. Holderby, pastor of the Moore Memorial church, indorsed the great work of the Children's Home Society in a few well-chosen words.

FIVE MEN ARE INJURED IN BALLOON ACCIDENT

Dresden, April 16.—A thrilling accident occurred today at the competition of the Saxon Aeronautical Society. The balloon Nordhausen ascended prematurely, carrying off Otto Korn, a Dresden manufacturer, clinging to the outside of the basket. The pilot at once opened the valve, letting off the gas, but the balloon was driven with great force agaist the gasometer. Korn fell to the ground, breaking his leg.

The ballon, freed from this weight, ascended quickly and passed over the gasometer, but the escaping gas ignited, causing an explosion. The four occupants of the balloon were thrown from the basket and crashed through a roof. The pilot, Captain Von Oidtman suffered a fractured skull and is not expected to recover. The other three also were badly injured.

WENT IN WRONG HOME; GAVE WOMEN FRIGHT

After running amuck at several places, and badly frightening a lady when he forced an entrance into her house, Harry Veal, 20 years old, a sheet metal worker of 537 Marietta street, was arrested last night by Call Officers Gorman and Palmer on a charge of disorderly conduct and placed under bond of $25 and costs.

It is said that Veal made a sudden entry into the home of George N. Morgan, 479 Marietta street, throwing Mrs. Morgan into a nervous fright by his actions. The police were called, but by the time they arrived he had fled, and he was found at a drug store, farther down the street, where he was taken into custody. He will be tried this afternoon.

Some of Those I Have Cured

A Human Interest Advertisement.
By DR. WILLIAM M. BAIRD.

WHEN I first began practicing my profession in Atlanta years ago, it was with the knowledge that many were prejudiced against advertising physicians. I knew there was some cause for this prejudice, for the reason that many advertising physicians had been unscrupulous in their dealings with patients and others had been fakers. I determined to overcome this prejudice. I determined to show the public that at least ONE physician who advertises KNOWS the diseases he treats, and that he CAN advertise and BE HONEST. I believe I have succeeded. People who were inclined to be skeptical before they had dealings with me are now kind enough to recommend me to their friends. They think, with me, that it is perfectly legitimate for an honest and competent physician to call attention to his services thru the newspapers in paid advertisements as for the business man to use newspaper space. And they believe, too, that it is more straightforward to come out openly and pay for the advertising than to get advertising by various means without paying for it. These people I have treated successfully have been from all walks of life. Practically all the professions and trades have been represented. I have treated millionaire and poor man, preacher and pugilist. Some I have told plainly that I could do nothing for them and would not take their money. The result has been that these people have learned that my 34 years of study and specializing in diseases of men, nervous disorders and chronic diseases qualify me to give expert treatment. They know that which I know—that I can cure any case which CAN be cured. And they know that my fees are within the reach of all. I am at my office from 8 to 7; Sundays and holidays 10 to 1. My monographs are interesting and free by mail, in plain, sealed wrapper.

IT LIFTS BURDENS FROM FARMERS

Democratic Free List Bill Immensely Popular.

Some Democratic Senators Who Object to Free Raw Materials May Oppose the Bill---Democrats Have Always Favored Free List for Farmers.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, April 16.—(Special.)—The possibility that some democratic senators, who oppose the doctrine of free raw materials may oppose the farmer's free list, to which the democratic house caucus gave its indorsement, is causing some speculation.

It is generally conceded that the free list will be tremendously popular in agricultural sections, and the attitude of the man who will oppose this measure, will be unenviable. Furthermore, the adoption of the free list as a corollary to the Canadian reciprocity agreement, by requiting the farmers of the country for any losses they might suffer through the operation of that agreement, is conceded to be good economy.

No New Thing With Democrats.

Admission free of duty of articles that the farmer needs is no new thing with democrats. That feature of tariff revision was approved by both Cleveland and Bryan. The farmers' free list of the house democrats was foreshadowed in the senate two years ago.

During the consideration of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill a number of amendments were offered by democratic senators putting various farm implements and other articles of farm use on the free list. These measures were invariably supported by practically the entire democratic side. Only rarely were they indorsed by the republican insurgents.

For instance, Senator Bacon, on July 7, 1909, moved to admit duty free plows, reapers, cultivators, threshing machines, cotton gins, and similar farm implements. The vote on the amendment was 28 yeas and 50 nays. Every democrat voted for it, and only two insurgents, Senators Clapp and La Follette.

On June 28, Senator Culberson offered an amendment to admit free of duty hoop or band iron for baling cotton and other commodities. It secured 31 votes to 38 against. Ten insurgents voted for it.

An effort to place salt on the free list, made by Senator Bacon on June 28, was defeated vy a vote of 18 to 42. All democrats who voted, except Foster and McEnery, of Louisiana, voted for it. All republicans voted against it.

An amendment by Mr. Cummins, republican insurgent, to reduce certain duties in the metal schedule, including pig iron, wrought and scrap iron and steel wire, received 31 votes to 40 against. Ten republican insurgents voted for this amendment, but it was one of minor importance to the farmers of the country.

An amendment to admit jute bagging free of duty lost by a vote of 25 to 33 on June 28.

The Vote on the Leather Schedule.

When afforded an opportunity to vote to admit free of duty hides, boots and shoes made of leather, harness and saddlery, only 5 republican insurgents voted for it, and 21 democrats. The vote came on Senator Stone's amendment to the committee amendment proposing a duty on hides, and is found on page 3691 of The Record of June 22, 1909. Every democrat present voted for the Stone amendment except Senator McEnery. The insurgents voting for it were Messrs. Bristow, Clapp, Crawford, Cummins and La Follette.

An amendment by Senator Bacon reducing the duty on window glass attracted but 2 republican votes, and was defeated, 25 to 52, on June 17. Bristow and La Follette, republicans, voted for the decrease, and McEnery, democrat, voted against it.

The wool schedule, known as Schedule K, was attacked in a speech by Senator Bacon on June 12. He offered amendments to practically every paragraph in that schedule. On the roll call, not a single republican voted for the reductions, the vote being 20 yeas to 50 nays.

Two days previously, when Senator Dolliver had offered an amendment reducing these excessively high duties, every democrat present voted with him except Senator Chamberlin, of Oregon. Every democrat present and voting voted for Senator La Follette's amendment on June 11, except Senator McEnery. The amendment failed, 32 to 44.

Thus the balloting went for two months. The democrats voted with the insurgents on practically all amendments offered by the latter, but rarely did the republican insurgents reciprocate and vote for amendments offered by democrats.

LOSES ONE ENGAGEMENT TO LAND A BETTER ONE

"You never can tell" is a popular expression that was probably coined on the streets by the makers and users of slang, but just the same it possesses an original aptness and directness that make it applicable on various and sundry occasions.

One never knows when the smallest incident may turn the entire course of one's life, and for clinching proof of this argument, provided you do not believe it, have a conference with Madame Frances Alda when she comes to Atlanta next week to sing the role of Desdemona in Verdi's brilliant opera, "Otello." Madame Alda has cause to appreciate the force and effectiveness of the expression and here is why:

When Oscar Hammerstein first went to Europe to engage artists to open his Manhattan Opera House he discussed a contract with Mme. Frances Alda, whom he found one of the most highly esteemed artists of the famous Royal Opera House in Brussels. It was fully expected that she would be a member of his company.

Owing to some differences as to terms, the contract was cancelled. Prior to making a new contract elsewhere Mme. Alda paid a visit to Italy, where she made a star appearance at Parma. Among the visitors at the opera house that evening was Mr. Giulio Gatti-Casazza, who was then the director general of the Scala Opera House at Milan, the leading lyric theater of Europe. Mr. Gatti-Casazza was impressed by and delighted with her singing and acting and sought an introduction to her. The result was her engagement at the Scala, where she sang several seasons and achieved great popularity.

Subsequently Mr. Gatti-Casazza found himself at the head of the Metropolitan Opera House in New York. Quite naturally he engaged Mme. Alda as one of his company. As events have shown it was not only her art but her personality that had charmed her director and a year ago she became Mrs. Gatti-Casazza.

Now, if Mme. Alda's contract with Mr. Hammerstein had not been cancelled she would not have met Mr. Gatti-Casazza at Parma; and if Mr. Hammerstein had not started an opera company in New York to compete with the Metropolitan Mr. Gatti-Casazza might not have been engaged for the Metropolitan and if neither of these things had happened Mme. Alda would not be singing Desdemona in Otello at Atlanta.

SERVICE RIFLES AT 1,000 YARDS ABLE TO DESTROY AEROPLANES

Washington, April 16.—"It is reasonable to believe that an aeroplane 1,000 yards away would stand no show if only the service rifle were used."

That is the conclusion of naval officers, expressed today in an official report to the navy department on the first attempt ever made to shoot an aeroplane-shaped kite from a battleship. The experiment was made April 6, when the Atlantic fleet was at target practice off Hampton Roads. Then only the service rifle was used in firing at the kites. Now preparations are being made to use a three-inch gun.

The kites used were box-shaped, 4x2 feet. A team of ten bluejackets on the quarterdeck did the firing. During the third volley aimed at the first kite sent up the string by which the kite was being towed was cut by a bullet and the kite sailed away without the number of hits being disclosed.

Of 160 shots fired very rapidly at the second kite, forty hits were made, several cutting the braces and frames. "As the bunting covered not more than three-fifths of the total area of the kite as presented to the ship," said the report, "it gave the excellent resuet of 40 hits out of 160 shots at an area of about five square feet at a rapidly-plunging target 500 to 700 yards distant in the air."

No statement is made as to the height of the kite above the sea.

HOTEL GUEST INJURED IN FIRE PRINCIPAL IN PRETTY ROMANCE

Dalton, Ga., April 16.—(Special.)—The prettiest and altogether the most unusual romance in the history of this city was brought to a happy culmination today when Mr. C. V. Downing, the popular young civil engineer, who narrowly escaped death in the burning of the Hotel Dalton here last Sunday, was carried to his wedding in an armchair and united to the sweetheart who has been for some days at his bedside.

The bride was Miss Willie McCord, daughter of Mr. W. D. McCord, a very prominent citizen of Birmingham. Upon receipt of a telegram informing her of Mr. Downing's injuries she came with her father to Dalton and has remained here, lending her sympathy and cheer to the popular young patient, while Dr. W. E. Wood and the nurse have coaxed him back to life and the promise of speedy and complete recovery.

Dr. Wood took Mr. Downing to his own home and among those he notified was Miss McCord, of Birmingham, to whom Mr. Downing was engaged to be married.

Miss McCord has been the guest of Mrs. W. M. Sapp and has visited Mr. Downing each day. She decided that if her intended husband ever needed her he did now and yesterday the wedding was arranged to take place today.

Bandaged and weak but happy, Mr. Downing was carried into the parlors of Dr. Wood's home and in the presence of a number of friends the wedding took place at 10 o'clock this morning.

Miss McCord is of a prominent Alabama family and the entire city of Dalton is showering congratulations upon lucky Mr. Downing and his plucky bride.

Among those who witnessed the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. J. S. McLemore, Miss McLemore, Mr. W. D. McCord, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Williams, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Sapp, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Black, Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Camp, Miss Fannie Lou Camp, Miss Irene Hunt, Major and Mrs. T. S. Lucas, Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Wood and family, Mrs. Sutton and Mr. T. R. Jones.

Dr. Wood's residence was beautifully decorated with spring flowers and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. J. S. McLemore, pastor of the First Baptist church.

EXHIBIT OF WARE PRODUCTS EXCITES GREAT INTEREST

Waycross, Ga., April 16.—(Special.)—An exhibit of this season's farm products has been arranged in Waycross, and from the samples already brought in, the county stands an excellent chance to produce some of the best crops of the state.

W. W. Griffin, who lives several miles from the city, has on exhibition a cabbage weighing sixteen and a half pounds; G. B. Haggard, of Waycross, shows a Georgia collard that measures nine feet four inches in circumference; George W. Deen exhibits oats not fully matured, but measuring fifty-one inches; lettuce heads that cover from twelve inches to thirty inches in diameter are shown by several truck growers, while strawberries, later than usual, occupy an important part of the exhibit. Onions, radishes, early peas, and many other varieties of garden truck, are exhibited, all labeled so as to settle any questions parties from Missouri may want to ask.

This exhibit is a permanent feature, and has attracted considerable attention. Visitors never fail to stop and investigate, and sales of farm tracts frequently result from an inquiry about the exhibition of products.

FLURRIES OF SNOW MARRED NEW YORK'S EASTER DAY

New York, April 16.—Flurries of snow early this morning and about church-going time, a bright afternoon sun, smothered now and then beneath great white puffs of cloud, and cold westerly winds which sent many an Easter hat aeroplaning, were the vagaries of the weather in New York today.

Altogether, it was pleasant, but far too cold and windy for the Easter festival. The throngs that joined in the annual Easter parade up Fifth avenue were, perhaps, as big as ever, but the usual brilliancy of silks and satins was hidden by winter coats and furs.

It was asserted by those who said they knew, that fewer of the "upper hundreds" than ever joined in the parade this year and that a majority of those who did were within the shelter of limousines or bundled in furs in the carriages which streamed up the avenue.

The churches in the city were crowded and it is doubtful if ever before such elaborate programs of music were attempted. In the decorations there were fewer Easter lilies. As a substitute orchids and roses which combine three shades of pink were favored by those who could afford them.

Atlantic City, N. J., April 16.—Nearly a quarter of a million visitors promenaded the boardwalk here today in the annual Easter parade. Every available rolling chair was in use during the entire day, forming a continuous procession in either direction, while the broad space between the two lines was crowded with those afoot. Bright, clear skies tempted many visitors to appear in their new spring clothes, but a sharp northwest wind which blew at the rate of 35 miles an hour made the furs worn by others decidedly comfortable.

TO GET MORE MEN IN THE CHURCHES

Atlanta Ministers and Laymen Hold Meeting Tonight.

Ministers and laymen of Atlanta will gather in the Young Men's Christian Association rooms at Pryor street and Auburn avenue tonight at 8 o'clock to prepare organization for the "Men and Religion's Forward Movement," whose force will be felt in every city and hamlet in the country this coming fall.

The meeting will be for the purpose of naming a committee to confer with one of the secretaries of the movement who will be in Atlanta April 27 for that purpose. The movement has been announced from the different pulpits and it is expected that the leading ministers and laymen will be present at the initial gathering.

Startled by the cold figures which show that there are in the churches 3,000,000 less men than women, the plan was outlined some time ago to start a nation-wide evangelical movement that will reach men and boys and bring them in the fold of the churches.

Atlanta is to be the center of the movement in this section of the south. Teams of religious leaders will wage an eight-day campaign simultaneously throughout the United States, taking in ninety large cities and 1,350 smaller cities. All the activities of the church will be represented in the campaign. Leading religious men have declared the movement the greatest undrtaking in the past twenty centuries.

IT'S HOME AGAIN FOR COL. ROOSEVELT

New York, April 16.—Former President Roosevelt returned home tonight from a seven-weeks' tour of the west and middle west. As he stepped off a train from Chicago he came into contact with a crowd of outgoing Easter visitors, many of whom greeted him with cheers. Nearly twenty persons followed the colonel to the carriage doors and many grasped his hand just as he jumped into an automobile to be whisked away to Oyster Bay.

Colonel Roosevelt's face was tanned by the western suns, and he said he felt "bully!" He refused to discuss the reciprocity proposition, prosperity in the west or his own plans.

Interesting Revivals Close.

Waycross, Ga., April 16.—(Special.)—Two of the best revival meetings ever held in Waycross came to a close tonight at the First Baptist church and at the Central Baptist tabernacle. Many additions to the two churches have resulted since the meetings began.

Greely, retired, having been selected as representative of the United States army on the American special embassy to the coronation of King George V., this appointment supersedes the original selection of Major General Frederick Dent Grant, commanding the department of the east, who on reconsideration has declined the honor. General Greely commanded an expedition to the North Pole in the early eighties and for years was chief signal officer of the army. He directed the erection of the lines of wire communication now extending throughout Alaska.

FOR THEIR CRIMES THEY ARE HONORED

To Become Members of the Dread Camorra.

Only Men Admitted to Membership Are Those With Long Criminal Record---Duel With Knives Precedes Admission. Secrets of Society Revealed.

Viterbo, Italy, April 16.—The most interesting revelations made by Gennaro Abbatemaggio, the Camorrist informer, at the trial of the members of that organization for the murder of Cuoccolo and his wife, had to do with the real nature of the Camorra, the dreaded association which first found its way from Arabia into Spain and from Spain into southern Italy, and how its adherents are chosen.

The Camorra in the city of Naples, as Abbatemaggio explained, is divided into fourteen bands, one for each region of the city. Each band is composed of twenty-four Camorrists and twenty-eight picciotti (recruits), each one of the former having two of the recruits at his disposal. Each picciotti in turn is served by five or six giovanni onarati (honored youths). The latter are aspirants for membership in the society.

5,000 Camorrists in Naples.

Thus in Naples alone there is a body of upwards of 5,000 men, determined in character, resolute and tried in astuteness and intelligence. This army, which has ramifications in almost every class of society, is practically directed by two men, the capein testator (head of heads), and the contaiullo, or cashier, who takes the place of the head when necessary.

Both of these officials are elected by a majority of voters. The contaiullo is generally an old Camorrist exacting each day the gains from the members or able to handle them roughly if they refused to pay.

The picciotti are chosen from among the giovani onarati and are instructed in their duties by the Camorrists. They are obliged to swear perfect obedience, after which the newly elected member kisses every Camorrist, beginning with the heads of heads, in token of good faith. When the ceremony of admission is about to be carried out, the society meets at the request of one of the members, after having posted the picciotti not to be taken by surprise.

His Crimes Are Recounted.

The Camorrist who has called for the assembly submits the name of his candidate and offers to act as his padrino (kind of godfather). He enumerates the services which his candidate has rendered, entering as ardently as possible into the details of burglaries, thefts and other important crimes which the picciotti, who desire to be promoted to the estate of Camorrist, has committed, not forgetting to call attention to the sfrego inflicted, which are the razor slashes across the cheek of the persons who have had to be called to order, which marks are very prominent on Abbatemaggio and Erricone, the latter reputed leader of the society.

As in a court of justice, there is a Camorrist called the terro contrario, who takes the part of public prosecutor and finds arguments to oppose the admission of the candidate. Even when these arguments are safely met, the candidates must, in the presence of the members, undertake the tirata, a kind of duel, the gravity of which varies according to circumstances and individuals. Generally the tirata is perfunctory, in which case it is called "of the muscles" because the combatants are allowed to wound each other only on the muscles of the arm, which they bare before engaging in the combat. If the candidate injures any other part of his opponent's body he is disqualified.

Five Knives Are Placed.

In a basin placed in the center of the meeting place—generally a tavern—five knives are placed. Two of these have sharp points and keen, double-edged blades; two have only the sharpened points, while the fifth is characterized by its great length. The knives are covered with a white handkerchief. The godfather of the candidate and a second chosen for his adversary take the knives with the double-edged blades, the head of the Camorra takes the long knife, while the candidate and his opponent grasp the others.

The duelists are then placed back to back with arms bare to above the elbow and when the head cries, "In the name of the saints, Cosmo and Damian, one—two—three," they turn and the combat begins. It continues until one or the other is stabbed in the arm. He who has done the stabbing immediately sucks the wound, kisses his opponent as a bond of friendship and bandages the injury with the white handkerchief taken from the basin. Each new member admitted must pay to the contaiullo fifteen lire ($3) as an entrance fee, half of which goes to the head of the Camorra and the other half to a fund for the purchase of a banquet.

When there is such a deep-rooted antagonism between the candidate and his opponent that one of the two must fall forever, the duel or tirata is termed "of the box." In such cases all the knife thrusts must be directed towards the upper part of the body or the head, as in a duel with rapiers. These duels, however, are rare.

ONLY $500 FOR "TEXAS;" $5,000 WAS AN ERROR

Because of a typographical error which appeared in The Constitution's report of the last meeting of the city council, there seems to be a serious financial misunderstanding in regard to the amount of money the city will expend in moving the old war engine "Texas" and housing it at Grant Park.

The total amount of money which will be expended is $500 and not $5,000 as was erroneously printed. The typographical error in The Constitution, for some unknown reason, also appeared in both the afternoon papers. Since then there has been much comment and several cards written about the city using so much money for the purpose.

It is only just the small amount of $500, and this amount will pay all the expenses of preserving a very valuable war relic.

MONUMENT IN MEMORY OF THE FRENCH SOLDIERS

Who Died Fighting to Secure Independence of United States.

Annapolis, Md., April 16.—An event of international interest will take place here next Tuesday afternoon when a monument to the memory of the French soldiers and sailors who lost their lives in the revolutionary war will be unveiled.

President Taft and the French ambassador, Mr. Jusserand, will attend. Several members of the president's cabinet and other high government officials will accompany the president.

The monument, which was erected by the General Society of the Sons of the Revolution, is a plain plank granite shaft fifteen feet high, with a bronze tablet, symbolically decorated, set in, and stands on an elevation at the rear of St. John's College campus, overlooking College Creek. It will be unveiled by Miss Amelie De Pau Fowler, of Baltimore, who is a direct descendant of Admiral de Grasse, the commander of the French fleet at the siege of Yorktown.

After the unveiling exercises President Taft will inspect the naval academy. It will be his first visit here since he became president.

WILLIAM BENEFIELD FOUND DEAD IN BED

Family Was in Atlanta When He Succumbed to Heart Trouble.

William Benefield, one of the most prominent planters of Clayton county, was found dead in bed yesterday morning at 7:30 o'clock at his residence, two miles below Riverdale.

The remainder of the family spent Saturday night in Atlanta with friends and left Mr. Benefield, who was 50 years old, and who had been suffering from a weak heart for over a year, alone in the house.

Sunday morning an old negro attendant went into the room where Mr. Benefield slept to awaken him for breakfast. He went over to the bed and laid his hand upon the dead man's shoulder. Then when he perceived that it was a corpse upon which his hand was resting he almost went into hysterics. It was half an hour later that he was strong enough to summon help from the neighbors, who found that death was due to heart failure.

Surviving Mr. Benefield are his wife, eight children and five brothers. The funeral will be held this morning at 11 o'clock at the residence. Interment will be at the family cemetery.

HORRORS IN MINES MUST BE STOPPED

So Says Dr. Holmes, Head of Government Bureau of Mines.

Washington, April 16.—Outlining some measures designed to go a long way towards preventing a repetition of mine accidents, such as recently occurred at Banner, Ala., and Throop, Pa., with their acompanying toll of human life, Dr. Joseph A. Holmes, who has just returned from investigating both accidents, today urged that "no miner or operator should feel satisfied until every precaution known to the industry has been taken."

Dr. Holmes is head of the bureau of mines. He said that mine fires, such, for instance, as those at Cherry, Ill., in November, 1909, with its 162 lives lost, and at the Pancoast colliery at Throop, which cost 73 lives, could easily be extinguished if promptly attended to. He advised that the shafts and the stables and engine rooms, when underground, should be of fireproof construction. If combustible materials must be stored in the mines there should be ample water supply, together with other fire-fighting apparatus.

Dr. Holmes urged the use of only those explosives least likely to ignite, and the general adoption of a sytem of electric firing, "to be used at a time when all of the miners are out of the mine." Other measures suggested are that only small quantities of any explosive needed for use during a single day should be in the mine at one time and under no conditions should the powder and the detonators or caps be carried into the mine together, nor should the powder or detonators be kept in any mine overnight, as dampness may change their quality.

Although the safest plan, according to Dr. Holmes, to prevent a dust explosion is to wet the coal dust throughout the whole mine, a thorough wetting in any part of a bituminous coal mine lessens the danger of an explosion. The cheapest and most satisfactory manner of doing this, he continues, is to turn the exhaust steam from the mine power plant into the mine along with the air current.

RELIGION HAS DONE MUCH FOR THE NEGRO

So Declares Richard D. Stinson in Easter Sermon at Little Rock.

Little Rock, Ark., April 16.—(Special.)—Rev. Richard D. Stinson, of Atlanta, Ga., preached the Easter day sermon in Bethel A. M. E. church here this morning. Rev. Dr. J. O. Iverson, who is a prominent leader of his race in this city, and is building a $40,000 church, is pastor.

Among other things, Stinson said: "The celebration of Easter should mean more to us, as a race, than display of fine clothes and a jolly good time. We were brought to this country some years ago with nthing that we could call our own; in fact, we were heathen, and when we recount the progress we have made we should be the most grateful of all people on the earth. The religion of Jesus Christ, the American schoolhouse and good people have done everything for the negro. I wonder if we are capable in large numbers of appreciating it, and if we may keep sober, and practical education is given a chance, with a Christian leadership, it has not yet appeared what the conservative, honest members of our race are to be."

Jurors Ignore Justice.

Macon, Ga., April 16.—(Special.)—Because citizens residing in the Godfrey district, whom he has repeatedly summoned to serve on his justice of the peace court juries, refuse to answer the summons, Judge J. L. Davidson has decided to bring the matter before the attention of the grand jury. He says that he has summoned over 1,150 jurors within the last year and only one time did he get enough responses to proceed with the case on trial. Jury service in the justice courts only pays 25 cents per day, but a citizen is liable by law to a fine of $5 for not serving when summoned.

40 REBELS KILLED; OVER 100 WOUNDED

In Battle With Federals in Chihuahua.

Federals Report Loss of Five Killed---Rebels Attacked Federals in an Effort to Rescue Shackled American Prisoners. None of Prisoners Wounded.

Chihuahua, Mexico, April 16.—Forty or more insurrectos were killed and over 100 were wounded in a battle fought between Sauz and Santa Clara canyon, about fifty miles north of here, according to federal couriers who arrived today. The couriers brought orders to have hospital cots ready for the federal wounded. The federals report five killed but later developments may change the figures. A number of women and children are believed to be among the killed.

Coming across from Casas Grandes on their way to Chihuahua with prisoners under General Lis Valdes, the federals, followed by about 100 refugees, were attacked.

Fought Over Shackled Prisoners.

Five hundred insurrectos under Generals Orozco and Villa had been instructed by Francisco Madero to head off the Casas Grandes contingent and if possible capture and release the prisoners. The fight took place on a hacienda as the prisoners, shackled together by ropes and the women and children refugees, weary from the long tramp, were scattered in a long broken line. The federals immediately responded with heavy firing and placed the prisoners and noncombatants under protection. The firing continued for several hours and resulted in sending forth from here of General Rabago with 500 reinforcements.

The extent of the fight became known when riderless horses arrived here with evidences of having left the front in a stampede. So far as known none of the prisoners, among whom are believed to be many Americans, were wounded and none escaped, although these statements are based on unofficials reports.

Great Hopes for Peace.

Great hope for peace is entertained here because of the prospect of the arrival of Francisco Madero, Sr., father of the insurrecto leader.

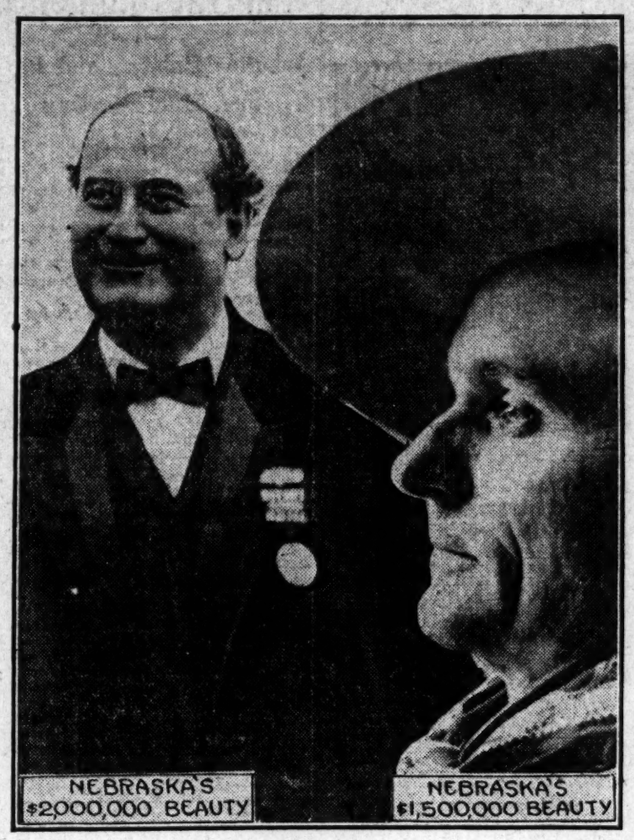

Fully aware of his son's determination not to end the war unless he achieves that for which the insurrection was started—a new election and the withdrawal of the president—the senior Madero, it is believed, hardly would hazard a trp into the interior unless he had something definitely favorable to offer.

Madero, Jr., has been much pleased with recent events in Mexico City, which he says have encouraged him and strengthened insurrecto prospects. He told the correspondent he would be glad to welcome his father, but he was emphatic in his assertion that no mere sentiment or family consideration would induce him to lay down arms.

"It is not a family or personal matter, and nothing but the triumph of our principles will induce us to quit," said Senor Madero.

OMAHA OFFERS "JIM" DAHLMAN TO MEMPHIS AT CUT RATES, $1,500,000

William J. Bryan is not the only million dollar beauty in Nebraska. Mayor James C. Dahlman is a close second. Recently citizens of Memphis, Tenn., offered Mr. Bryan $2,000,000 to remove thither and make his home. Mr. Bryan smiled his broadest, which is exceedingly broad, and told the Memphis committee that Lincoln, Neb., being just about the center of the United States, suited him as a place of residence. He said he could get to the remotest part of the nation from Lincoln in about two days and he preferred to live at the center. Now the Omaha Commercial club through its publicity manager, Will A. Campbell, has offered Memphis a substitute in the person of "Cowboy Jim" Dahlman, mayor of Omaha, and defeated candidate for governor. Mr. Campbell assures the Memphis people that if they really want a Nebraska beauty they can get Mr. Dahlman for about $1,500,000, thereby saving half a million on the proposition. Mr. Dahlman and Mr. Bryan used to be close friends, but they had a political split last year, which has estranged them. Omaha, it is said, is likely to adopt the commission form of government soon, and the cowboy mayor will be out of a job and ready to accept any reasonable offer from Memphis.

a manner subjecting American citizens in American territory to danger. I have also sent a messenger, Charles McKean, to the federal commander, transmitting to him your instructions relative to the observing of the neutrality laws and the endangering of American lives on American territory. How far am I warranted going under the circumstances? SHUNK."

War Department's Warning.

The war department promptly replied:

"Replying to your request for instructions as to what to do in case fighting occurred which involved danger to citizens of Douglas or vicinity, you are instructed as follows:

"Under no circumstances allow any of your men to cross international boundary. Prevent as far as possible any violation of the international laws through crossing of armed troops or individuals from that territory to that of Mexico. In case either federals or insurgents enter American territory, disarm them and hold them pending further orders. Advise the citizens of Douglas to avoid exposure to fire from Mexican territory and repeat through civil messenger your previous protest against firing into American territory by either federals or insurgents."

He will Attack Soon.

The following reply was received:

"Your message concerning danger to people of Douglas delivered to federal commander who promised to respect your wishes. Will do all in his power to prevent damage in United States territory. He reports that he will attack very soon.

SHUNK, Commanding."

At 10:15 p. m.:

KENTUCKY CANDIDATE HAS STRANGE PLATFORM

Gubernatorial Aspirant Ventures Some Unheard-of "Principles."

Cadiz, Ky., April 16.—Without designating by what party he hopes to be nominated, Max Hanberry, an attorney of this place, has announced his candidacy for governor of Kentucky on a strange platform.

Among the "principles" for which he stands, as announced in his platform, are the giving of "every yellow-dog democrat a lucrative office;" the pensioning of all "white republicans;" giving each married woman a 40-horse power automobile, two hats each season, and a half ton of chewing gum annually; while he would give each negro a "watermelon patch, a mule and a fish pond, with imported labor to handle his mule and cultivate his melons."

He concludes his announcement with: "So, with some impatience, not on my account, but on account of the 'dear people,' I await my inaugural.

"MAX HANBERRY."

Trouble at Delagoa Bay.

London, April 16.—A Cape Town dispatch says that the British protected cruiser Forst has been ordered to Delagoa Bay. According to the Johannesburg Express anarchy reigns at Delagoa Bay, owing to the fact that many officials and residents of this Portuguese East African territory remain loyal to the deposed monarchy. The revolutionists demand the deposition of the governor of Mozambique and the expulsion of these loyalists.

WARNING IS GIVEN BY UNITED STATES

To Federals and Rebels at Agua Prieta.

Colonel Shunk, Commanding American Cavalry, Tells Mexicans They Must Fight So as Not to Send Their Bullets Into Douglas.

Agua Prieta, Mexico, April 15.—(Via Douglas, Ariz.)—After a number of small skirmishes between the rebels and the advancing federals today, in which it cannot be learned that there were any fatalities, the opposing forces tonight were awating another day. The federals were wearied from their long march and at dusk halted. The rebels then were busy fortifying Agua Prieta and vicinity.

Much excitement prevailed in Douglas and Agua Prieta tonight over the prospects of another battle tomorrow.

Message Sent Federal Commander.

Lieut. Col. William A. Shunk, commanding the First United States cavalry in Douglas, sent James T. Williams, a newspaper man of Tucson, and Charles McKean, a former army man, with a message to Reynoldo Diaz, commanding the advancing forces of federals. The message was similar to that delivered to the rebel chiefs in Agua Prieta—that battle plans must be so arranged that no bullets from either federal or rebel rifles cross the line and again endanger life and property on United States territory.

The two men went in an automobile flying the United States colors and a white flag and were escorted by the rebels to within sight of the federals, 3 miles south of Agua Prieta.

Promises to Be Careful.

The messages were received by Diaz and his staff. The federal commander sent word to Lieutenant Colonel Shunk that every precaution would be taken against firing across the line.

Diaz said:

"If Americans were killed in the battle of last Thursday, it must have been because of their failure to observe care. If, in our attack on Agua Prieta any shots cross into the United States territory, it will be because we are unable to prevent it."

The rebels have dug trenches between Agua Prieta and Douglas at right angles to the United States line to prevent a flank movement on the part of the federals, thus keeping them from getting between the two border cities.

Plans of Rebel Commander.

Colonel Medina, commanding the rebels, said to the Associated Press correspondent tonight that he planned to confine the fighting to the south of Agua Prieta, but would use the city to protect his forces if driven back.

"If we are defeated and compelled to give up Agua Prieta, our troops, all mounted, will not cross into United States territory," he said. "We will retreat east or west, taking new stands in the mountains. We prefer to die on Mexican soil rather than flee into the United States."

United States cavalry from Tucson and Waco have arrived in Douglas, augmenting the force already there. The troops were on duty all day; and sightseers were not permitted nearer to the boundary than Fourth street. This street was crowded ten deep for a distance of a mile during the afternoon.

The citizens of Douglas have arranged to give first aid to the wounded. Many persons have volunteered for Red Cross service and sixty-five automobiles have been placed in service.

CYANIDE OF POTASSIUM TAKEN BY DANIEL YOUNG

Philadelphia, April 16.—Leaving an open letter addressed to the socialist party, in which he condemned the business men of this country and urged that the work for socialism be continued, Daniel Kissam Young, a well-known writer on socialistic topics, committed suicide by taking cyanide of potassium today at his home in Narbroth, a suburb of this city.

His body was discovered by a maid in his employ.

Before ending his life he had also written letters to his wife and his family physician. In the latter letter he told of the poison he had used to end his life.

The dead man was born in Williamsburg, N. Y., in 1851. His father, the Rev. Albert Anderson Young, was a noted abolitionist.

Young, of recent years, had devoted himself to writing in the cause of socialism. The suicide's widow is a well-known advocate of woman suffrage.

STOCK BATTLE WILL FEATURE SUMMER THEATRICAL SEASON

Now that the smoke of war between the first-class producers in Atlanta has died away, the end coming with the close of the season, the Orpheum this week, the Grand next week, interest centers in the coming battle between stock companies here this summer.

The Bunting company has been at work at the Grand for several weeks. It has made a good impression upon the theatergoers, and large audiences have been present at all performances. The success of the company has been largely due to the personal popularity of Bunting, gained during her stay in Atlanta at the Lyric theater last year.

The Schiller Players will open their season next Monday evening at the Lyric theater. Their mode of operation will be different from that pursued by the Grand. While there will be in the cast a number of well-known actors and actresses, there will be no headliners billed for the engagement. The individual will be subordinated to the production.

It will be a battle royal, and promises to give Atlanta some of the best entertainment of the year. Both companies are fortunate in having connections which will give the pick of the best plays in the country open to stock. Th Grand company has already given a number of first-class plays. The Lyric will show its good will by opening with "The Girl of the Golden West."

The Schiller Players are at work this year in four cities. Companies will play the summer out at Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis and Norfolk. The Birmingham company opens tonight in "The Girl of the Golden West" and Mr. Schiller is now in Birmingham to witness that event. Then he will rush back to Atlanta to see that everything is in readiness for the Atlanta opening in the same play on Monday week.

Jim McEachron is in the cast at the Grand this week, and her work in rehearsals promises a big week for her. The little girl has one of the best parts ever offered her, and is letter perfect in the role. In fact, she learned it in a few hours. Jim is one of the best child actresses in the company. Given a chance on the stage she would now be earning big money, but her father and mother have never been willing to send her on the road.

When Marie Pavay opens at the Lyric next week Atlanta will be introduced to a very magnetic, very attractive young woman. The name, by the way, is spelled P-a-v-a-y. It has been spelled a number of ways recently, but this is the only one, according to advices received from headquarters. Listen to Ed Schiller or to Joseph Totten talk about Miss Pavay for awhile, and the ordinary listener gets the impression there never was a good looking woman before, and the mould was broken when she was made.

Miss Asquith had a rather trying opener at the Grand on last Monday evening. The star was suddenly taken ill, said she could not go on. Manager Perry in despair. Tears out some of the hair, left from former encounters with stars. Then Miss Asquith to the rescue. Said she would do her best. It was a good best. The next day, at 8:30 o'clock she was told she could have the role for the rest of the week. Then she got to work at once. Had the part memorized down pat, and that night went on, through a tricky and long part, with but one slip. Going some in the memory line.

Manager Perry has his lines out for an ingenue and expects to land one in a few days. She will be a kind of an understudy to the star, so that in the event of sudden illness the performance can be given without embarrassment.

Mr. Perry is greatly pleased with the versatility of Miss Asquith.

An act that will be of great interest to the old soldiers, veterans of the sixties, will be offered at the Forsyth next week when Colonel J. A. Patte, Major C. H. Hamersly, Captain Frank E. Turner, Captain George P. Dillon and Corporal G. A. Ford, composing the "Old Soldier Fiddlers," appear at the vaudeville house. They are soldier musicians.

When the "Three Twins" have appeared at the Orpheum and concluded their season, likewise completing the offering of the syndicate in Atlanta for the season, work will begin at once on the house, various improvements being planned. It will be better ventilated and arrangements for ample exits will be made. Then a capable stock company will be engaged, with a change of bill each week.

Joseph Totten, the Lyric stage director, may become a permanent Lyric fixture for summers to come, because he is now hooked up with a producing force that will have use for him all seasons, and assign him to Atlanta in the summer. The Schiller Players have fallen in love with the energetic stage producer, and the mechanical and scenic departments seem overanxious to do things to please him.

★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★ IN THE LABOR FIELD ★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★

Believing that the south should have representation in the board of directors of the I. P. P. a resolution was adopted at the last meeting of No. 8 indorsing and recommending for the office S. B. Marks, ex-president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades. It is rumored that one of the vice presidents of the international will tender his resignation to take effect at the meeting of the convention. The recommendation of Mr. Marks is in recognition of the valuable services he has performed in the local field.

About thirty members of the organized musicians of the city played an important part in the elaborate Easter program given at St. Philip's cathedral yesterday morning. Their artistic interpretations of the pieces of the great masters were undoubted proof of the high quality of the work done by the local association.

President Luther Still announces that the membership of the Atlanta Typographical Union is increasing more rapidly at present than at any previous period in its existence. The organization now numbers nearly 300 members.

President C. T. Williamson has issued the official call for the convention of the Georgia Federation of Labor, which meets in Rome beginning Wednesday morning, June 21, and continuing for three days. Each trade assembly will be entitled to one delegate for every five unions or fraction thereof. Local unions will be entitled to one delegate for every fifty members or fraction thereof.

OFFICER'S ASSAILANT MOVED FROM COLUMBUS

Policeman Marchant Reported Dying---Was Shot by Jas. Jefferson Last Week.

Columbus, Ga., April 16.—(Special.)—Police Officer Marion Marchant, who was shot several times last Wednesday night by James Jefferson, a young man of the city, is still living, but tonight is reported in a dying condition.

Five of the six bullets fired at the officer at close range struck him, one of them going through the breast, and that he has survived the wounds so long is regarded as remarkable.

Jefferson has been removed from the local jail to another city, and is said to be in Macon.

STRIPLING GETS HEARING TODAY

pardoned, and I believe Governor Brown will give it to him.

"I would have done just what Stripling did, and I believe any other man would have done the same who had any love for sister or wife. What good would it do now to put Stripling up for life, and what good would it do Cornett? As Stripling has shown to have been a good man for fourteen years, I think he ought to have a pardon, and I trust he will get it soon."

J. F. Linn, of Godfrey, Ga., says:

"Editor Constitution: I have been reading everything published about the Stripling case, and I see where the women are taking a hand to keep him from getting a pardon. If I understand what he killed Cornett for I do not see how any woman can condemn him. If I understand it he was protecting his wife and sister. Stripling has bravery, beyond doubt, in that he believes in protecting women and society. If the country was full of such men as he there would be fewer divorce cases in the courts, and there would not be so many unhappy homes.

"I hope to see the day when we will have a law that will punish a man instead of allowing him to pay a fine for making improper proposals to another man's wife. I hope Governor Brown will see his case as the prison commission did and give him a pardon."

The Passing Throng

Harvey Craig, of Gainesville, editor of The Eagle, the oldest paper in Gainesville and one of the oldest in the state, is in the city for a few days.

"Thirty years ago," said Mr. Craig yesterday, "I made my home in Atlanta. I am, as you know, a practical printer, and for years "held cases" on The Constitution. That was in the days of Evan Howell, N. P. T. Finch and Henry Grady. Grady was then the coming man in southern journalism, and he made good with a rush. But, did you ever see a combination like that at the head of The Constitution in those days? There was Howell and Grady and Hemphill. Each had a different view of life, and yet no three men ever got along better or more harmoniously than that trio."

"I was down in Macon a few days ago," remarked Captain James Wright yesterday, "and, while there, met a couple of the leading members of the Macon bar. During the conversation, one of them remarked:

"'I guess you people up in Atlanta take Macon's determination to secure the removal of the state capitol as a joke, don't you?'

"I laughed at the remark, but before I got through with that brace of lawyers they didn't know whether they wanted the capitol or not. I informed them that, for one, I would vote with them to get that capitol, and that I wasn't the only Atlantan who would do the same thing. That seemed to astonish them, and they asked my reason. I told them that Atlanta was big enough not to miss the statehouse if it were taken away, and that the land on which it stands could be used to advantage.

"'But,' said I, 'when the statehouse is moved it will take at least ten millions to put it up, and you people will have to come across with it. The state is much richer now than when the present capitol was built, and the people won't be satisfied with any cheap structure.'"

Russellville, Ala., April 16.—Northbound Southern passenger train coming into Russellville tonight at 10:15 o'clock ran into an open switch and crashed into a switch engine on the siding, demolishing both engines, instantly killing Fireman Douglas White, white, and slightly injuring Engineer Beavers, of the passenger train.

sissippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Wisconsin and New Mexico have, in meetings of their state conferences, officially indorsed Mrs. Scott for the highest office within the bestowal of the daughters. This does not necessarily mean that these states will go for her unanimously, but it does mean that she will get all but a few scattering votes. In many other states she will get a large majority. If the Storyites have any strength, why do they not show figures?

"Our president general, Mrs. Matthew T. Scott, has never worried about the outcome of the election. She has been giving her time and strength to the vast executive work her office entails, instead of running around the country campaigning. Her faithfulness to her work has been the only method employed by her as a vote-winner.

"The Storyites have injured themselves throughout the country by the discourtesy of the race they are making at this time, when it is an unwritten law that every president general shall have a second term of office, Mrs. Scott does not desire a courtesy second term, and her election next week will not be won on this basis. The Story followers have no hope in this contest."

Statement for Mrs. Story.

For Mrs. Story there were equally forceful and positive claims, couched in this wise:

"Mrs. Matthew T. Scott has been claiming everything for the election which takes place this week, and we have been satisfied to let her claim it. If we get an honest count of ballots we have the election won. We will get votes in every state except two, which have officially indorsed her. We have refused to give out the number of votes we have in each state, nor will we consent to give out this information before the election takes place. We know our strength, and we are confident of our victory."

The battle two years ago was bitter, but the indications are that the earnestness of the present struggle will far surpass the preceding contest. The election will occur Thursday.

Taft to Greet Daughters.

Tomorrow's session will be signalized by a greeting extended personally to the society by President Taft. The Marine band will play. Addresses will be delivered by Mrs. Scott, the president general; Mrs. John W. Foster, honorary president general; William A. Marble, president general of the Sons of the American Revolution; and by Senator Robert L. Taylor, of Tennessee.

FLYING TRAIN SPLITS CROWD OF PERSONS

Two Women Killed and Also the Man Who Tried to Rescue Them.

Elizabeth, N. J., April 16.—The Lakewood Flyer of the New Jersey Central railroad plunged through a crowd of several hundred persons about to board a local train at the Elizabeth avenue station here tonight, scattering them right and left, killed two aged women and a baggagemaster who tried to rescue them.

The dead are:

Mrs. Ann Eliza Stone, aged 87, of Riverhead, L. I.

Mrs. Anna Cosgrove, who was a daughter of Mrs. Stone, aged 60, of Belport, N. J.

Edward S. Saunders, of Point Pleasant, N. J., baggagemaster of the local train.

Saunders heard the roar of the oncoming express and shouted a warning, which cleared the track of those flocking across it to the standing local train, with the exception of Mrs. Stone and Mrs. Cosgrove. The latter saw the approaching train and tried to assist her mother, whose step was slow because of age and infirmities, to safety. When the express was almost upon them the baggagemaster leaped from his coach and ran towards them as if to drag them with him across the tracks. The train caught the trio squarely in the center of the tracks and hurled them thirty feet, mutilating their bodies and spluttering their blood on the clothing of half a dozen or more women who had narrow escapes.

Woman and Her Work----Progress and Development in the Home and Out of It

Petition Council for Covered Garbage Carts.

The first resolution offered in the new second ward club for civic betterment was to petition council through the club for covered garbage carts as a precaution against flies that are the result in many communities of the trail of the uncovered garbage carts now used by the city.

The resolution grew out of the report of the complaint committee of the second ward club of which club Mrs. Courtland Winn is president, and the subject was presented in a letter to Mrs. Winn at a meeting Saturday as follows:

Mrs. Courtland S. Winn, President Second Ward Civic Committee—Dear Madam: Our committee on complaints find that it will be impossible for Atlanta to rid herself of flies as long as garbage is hauled through her streets in overloaded and uncovered garbage carts.

We suggest that resolutions be passed petitioning council to appropriate funds sufficient for covers to these carts. These covers may be constructed of wood and hinged on the carts similar to those in Richmond, Va., or with canvas covers, which are used in Baltimore, Md.

As our city council has just passed an ordinance screening flies, we feel confident that should council doubt the wisdom of this suggestion if they would follow one of these carts through the streets a few blocks, they will hasten to provide funds for these covers.

Practical Work.

This very practical movement on the part of the ladies of the second ward illustrates eloquently the value of women coming together to discuss their mutual interests. They might have spent the rest of their lives discussing the disadvantages of uncovered garbage carts and council might have gone on, letting the carts go uncovered, but when a group and organization of representative women get their heads together, and decide that the cleanliness and health of the community depends on certain precautions and that these precautions will have to be brought about by an action of council, they have only to ask council and they will get it. The second ward club will not be a week old until Tuesday, but they have met, elected officers, appointed committees; and those committees have begun to act.

Mrs. Courtland Winn announces that she has divided her ward into districts, with the following chairmen: First district, Mrs. E. D. McDonald; Second district, Mrs. M. L. Brittain; Third district, Miss Martha Boynton; Fourth district, Mrs. J. T. Eichberg; Fifth district, Mrs. S. A. Visanski; Sixth district, Mrs. J. A. Bell; Seventh district, Mrs. G. E. Chaffin; Eighth district, Mrs. F. B. Murray; Ninth district, Miss Jekyll; Tenth district, Mrs. S. B. Turman.

A business meeting of the entire membership of the second ward club is called for Wednesday morning 10:30 at Mrs. Winn's.

SEVENTH WARD LADIES CO-OPERATE WITH MEN'S CLUB

The Seventh Ward Woman's Club for Civic Betterment, of which club Mrs. F. J. Spratling is president, sent to the Men's Improvement Club of the same ward meeting Friday night a resolution as follows:

Whereas, the entire city is becoming awakened to the importance of parks and playgrounds and whereas a desirable location and beautiful grounds can be obtained in the seventh ward in the new section not yet built up if prompt and decisive action can be obtained by the unanimous efforts of the citizens of the ward, and whereas the Seventh Ward Improvement Club meets tonight in regular session when this matter should and probably will be considered. Therefore be it resolved,

First, that we, the Civic Club of the Seventh Ward, in session assembled, hereby call upon the Seventh Ward Improvement Club to use every effort to secure adequate parks and playgrounds for this ward as speedily as possible.

Second, that we urge our representative in council to use every legitimate means to accomplish this result.

Third, that we pledge the active support of our membership to the accomplishment of these results by the most hearty co-operation.

Fourth, that a copy of these resolutions be furnished the president of the Seventh Ward Improvement Club before they meet tonight.

MRS. J. H. ANDREWS,
Chairman of Resolutions.

Five Sections Meet.

The resolution was the result of proceedings of the five section meetings of the Seventh Ward Improvement Club Friday morning.

When received at the Men's Improvement Club Friday night the resolution was heartily indorsed, and the secretary authorized to convey that information to the ladies. In addressing the ladies of the five sections of the ward at their meeting Friday Mrs. J. H. Andrews outlined the purposes of the club when she said:

"An evidence of Atlanta's civic awakening is the enthusiasm shown by the women in organizing civic clubs in every ward in the city.

"The motives of the true civic club woman are the love of good and beautiful work as applied to useful service.

"On Friday afternoon rallies were held in five homes representing the different sections of the seventh ward.

"These meetings were to more thoroughly acquaint the women with the work to be done, and to arouse more interest and enthusiasm. Work was outlined so that each lady has a definite plan of campaign to carry out before April 19.

"A house to house canvass will be made in the several sections to insure clean yards, corners and alleys on 'cleaning-up' day.

"The automobile parade to take place on that day received hearty indorsement and its success is assured.

"The eager response and sympathetic co-operation on the part of the seventh ward ladies is a great encouragement to Mrs. Woods White, city federation president, and Mrs. F. J. Spratling, president of the Seventh Ward Civic Club, who visited the meeting at the homes of Mrs. C. E. Jones in Battle Hill, Mrs. E. L. Lester, Mrs. Charles Forest, Mrs. A. B. Colcord, on Gordon street, and W. P. Anderson on Lake street."

PLEA FOR THE MOUNTAIN BOY AND GIRL

The Tallulah Falls Industrial School has nowhere to look for a single dollar of support but to the clubs composing the State Federation to which it belongs.

This school, a $3,000 building, on five acres of ground, with two teachers and reaching nearly 100 children, furnishes the only chance for education to the children of a very large district in the most beautiful part of the north Georgia mountains.

The building has two large school rooms, a kitchen, a workshop, and mothers' parlor, but no place for the teachers to live, or for the pupils who come from a long distance over the mountains. Some time ago materials were donated for a building which would supply this need. It was expected that money would gradually accumulate with which to pay for the labor to put up the building. An emergency has made it necessary, however, to put up this house at once. The furniture for the little rented cottage in which the teachers have been living is now in the middle of the big school room. No place for school or teachers!

So the education committee of the Atlanta Woman's Club, Mrs. A. O. Woodward, chairman, has secured the assistance of the Emma Bunting Stock Company, at the Grand, and on Tuesday afternoon, April 18, a benefit performance of the "Commanding Officer" will be given. All of the boxes and many of the single seats have been taken, and it is hoped that a good sum will be realized to aid in this splendid work.

THE FLORENCE HOME.

Editor Woman's Department: We, the executive board of Florence Home for Children, Mrs. F. M. Robinson, Mrs. Lyman Amsden, Miss Mary Lin, Mrs. Henry H. Tucker, Mrs. McD. Wilson, Mrs. Goldie R. Lloyd, Mrs. John Davis, and Dr. Elizabeth Broach, beg space to thank Mrs. C. F. Wilkinson for her splendid gift of a lovely piano to our new kindergarten department. It was in response to our letter in your last Sunday paper that Mrs. Wilkinson overwhelmed us with gratitude for her beautiful donation. And second to this only in point of time, came another piano, through the generous impulse of Mrs. John J. Woodside, which, by kind consent of the donor, will go as a very providence, to replace a dilapidated old instrument in the little chapel of our Crittenton Rescue Home for Girls. Eternity alone can tell the good of these two gracious gifts to the homeless little ones, and them to whom Christ said: "Go and sin no more."

CLEANING-UP DAY WEDNESDAY.

Cleaning-up day Wednesday will be observed by every good housekeeper in Atlanta who will signify her desire to co-operate with all others in this incident of civic betterment by displaying somewhere in the front of the premises a white flag.

The civic betterment clubs of the city organized within the last ten days by Mrs. Woods White, president of the City Federation, have given a great impetus to the idea of a cleaner, healthier city, and, although the good housekeeper always keeps a clean premises, by observing cleaning-up day and displaying the white flag, they will indicate that they are a part of the civic improvement movement.

On cleaning-up day there will be a tour of inspection of all the wards in the city in automobiles for the purpose of seeing not only the cleanliness on all sides and deciding upon the prize winners, but that it may be seen those districts of the city which most need improvement. It will be announced later the time the tour will start and the place of meeting.

Mrs. John L. Moore has been appointed chairman of cleaning-up day in the Fourth Ward Civic Club, and it is requested that all responses as to observing that day and membership notices be sent to her at 371 North Jackson street.

MISS BERTHA SPELL'S HEALTH

Was Greatly Improved—After Fever Had Run Her Down —By Cardui, the Woman's Tonic.

Rosedale, Tex.—Miss Bertha Spell, of this city, contributes an interesting letter on her experience with that famous woman's tonic, Cardui.

She writes: "I had fever for forty-eight days and when I got up my feet were swollen and I had some womanly troubles.

"I had read so many testimonials about Cardui that I decided to try it, so I used six bottles and it straightened me up."

Not only when you are seriously sick, and suffering agonies from female complaint, as some women do, is it the time to take Cardui, but also when your sickness has gone and you need something to straighten you up."

This is the time to take a tonic and for a woman what better tonic could there be than Cardui, the woman's tonic?

Thousands write, as Miss Spell did, to tell how Cardui helped them.

Try it for your troubles.

FACULTY IS CHOSEN FOR SUMMER SCHOOL

Dr. Williams, Dean of the Ohio State Normal, Will Be With Georgia Teachers.

Athens, Ga., April 16.—(Special.) Plans are already being perfected and talent engaged for the coming summer school of the University of Georgia and the dean of the summer school is busy closing up the arrangements. The dates have been announced—June 29 to August 2.

Dr. Henry G. Williams, dean of the State Normal School of the University of Ohio, has consented to come to the University of Georgia July 3 to remain a week or ten days with the teachers of Georgia then assembled at the summer school.

Another distinguished lecturer will be President Lincoln Hully of Stetson University, Florida. Dr. Hully has been with this summer school two previous sessions and is a favorite in Athens.

Superintendent Lawton B. Evans will be one of the lecturers and an instructor in school supervision.

It is expected that Governor Smith will speak on educational reform in Georgia at some time in the session, and it a part of the plan to have some distinguished scholar or educator to address the school on the world's peace movement.

State School Commissioner Brittain, Chancellor Barrow, President Branson and other distinguished men, will address the teachers on vital subjects.

PLENTY OF APPLICANTS FOR THIS FAT FEE JOB

Much Speculation in Macon as to Who Will Secure $6,000 City Court Clerkship.

Macon, Ga., April 16.—(Special.) There is much speculation among the members of the legal fraternity here as to who will be the next clerk of the city court, that office now being vacant as the result of the death of the last incumbent.

The office pays about $6,000 per year in fees and is one of the most lucrative in the county.

The appointment will be made by Judge Robert Hodges during the coming week. Granville Connor, former chief of police, is now deputy clerk. It is not believed that he will be promoted.

There are plenty of applicants for the place.

Work on Federal Building.

Waycross, Ga., April 16.—(Special.)—Advance forces of the company in charge of the construction work for the federal building at Waycross are expected here this week, and by the first of May the site of the building will present a scene of great activity, if present plans are carried out. The money to complete the Waycross office has been given to the proper department, and no further delays will crop up.

YOUNG CHAS. WIEHRS NOW OUT OF DANGER

Father of Lad Will Be Called to Answer for Accident on Savannah Street.

Savannah, Ga., April 16.—(Special.)—Charles W. Wiehrs, Jr., who was injured in a collision Saturday night between his father's motorcycle and the automobile of Dr. Robert V. Martin, is now believed to be out of danger.

Mrs. Robert M. Gibbes, who was thrown out of the automobile with a baby in her arms, is still confined to her home, but her condition is not serious.

It is probable the police will call upon Wiehrs, Sr., to answer for fast and reckless driving. He admits he was driving his machine with his young son at the handle bars at great speed in order to get home before it rained.

The motorcycle knocked the automobile completely around, and Wiehrs and his son were hurled 20 feet.

MACON ENGINEER WINS; CAPT. WILCOX OUSTED

Macon's Consulting Engineer to Be Laid Off and Sewer Work Stopped.

Macon, Ga., April 16.—(Special.)—Developments of the past week indicate that at the meeting of council Tuesday night it will be decided to discontinue the laying of the sewers in South Macon for the present, which will also entail the discharge of Special Consulting Engineer J. W. Wilcox and his force of ten assistants. Insurgents in council prevented this action from being taken last week, but it is now likely that the order will be given, as a result of the weakening of the opposition by the defection of one or more of its members.

The whole thing means that City Engineer C. C. Anderson, father of Alderman W. T. Anderson, will win his fight to secure complete control of the engineering department and to oust Captain Wilcox.

CAR TURNS TURTLE; OCCUPANTS ESCAPE

As by a Miracle Carolina Party Comes Out of Accident Practically Uninjured.

Asheville, N. C., April 16.—In a accident which was featured by seemingly miraculous escapes from frightful deaths, a big touring car, containing Miss Elma English, Miss Gertrude Guischard, of this city; Joseph Chilton and O. E. Witt, of Knoxville, Tenn., left the Burnesville road, 1¼ miles from the city limits, this afternoon and plunged down into a gully, tearing away a wire fence and posts which skirted the top.

In its descent the car turned turtle, burying all four occupants beneath it when it settled at the bottom. All managed to crawl from beneath, however, Miss English and Mr. Witt sustaining practically slight injuries, while Miss Guischard and Mr. Chilton were unhurt. It is believed that the wire fence, which the car carried with it, saved the occupants from being crushed to death beneath the machine.

ANOTHER SKYSCRAPER FOR THE CENTRAL CITY

Dr. E. P. Frazier to Build Ten-Story Structure Near Macon's New Hotel.

Macon, Ga., April 16.—(Special.)—It is announced that a 10-story office building, to be known as the "Chamber of Commerce" building, because that institution will have the entire top floor as headquarters, will be erected on Third street, in the rear of the Fourth National bank, at an early date. This is within a stone's throw of the new $500,000 hotel site.

The building will be put up by Dr. E. P. Frazier at a cost of about $150,000, work to start within the next 45 days.

This property was purchased Saturday from the Bashinski estate for $75,000.

WHY COTTON IS "UP" PERMANENTLY.

Many of the cotton spinners in this country, as well as in Europe, complain of slackness in the textile trade. Prices of the finished product do not keep pace with the rise in the cost of the raw product.

Business hangs fire. Here and there, curtailment is deemed imperative. Interview some of the more pessimistic of them and you will gather the impression that things are going to the "demnition bow-wows."

This state of mind, and the conditions upon which it is founded, are the outgrowths of a basic economic misconception that needs to be thoroughly corrected before the pendulum swings back to normal; so far as the mills, the jobbers and the consumer are concerned.

It is not, ordinarily, the custom of The Constitution to reproduce the trade circulars of market firms.

But the statement recently issued by S. H. P. Pell & Co., a leading exchange firm of this country, so pertinently analyzes the conditions indicated, and points the remedy, that we give it elsewhere without amendment or revision.

All of the confusion and uncertainty existing today in the textile world may be traced to the vague belief that somehow, sometime, prices for cotton, being artificially high, are destined to drop.

The logical arguments of the firm cited knock the props from under this delusion with a sledge hammer.

Here is the core of the situation, as expressed in the statement reproduced elsewhere.

> There is no mystery as to the true reason for the present prices of cotton. It is that CONSUMPTION IS PROGRESSING MORE RAPIDLY THAN PRODUCTION, and neither the present price of cotton, nor, in fact, any price under THIRTY CENTS per pound, will in any way affect the consumption by the ultimate consumer who, even at such a price, could not find a satisfactory substitute.

The statement is supported by statistics giving production and consumption for the past seven years.

In that period, the world-production of cotton was 86,426,000 bales.

The world's consumption was 88,200,000 bales, or more than 2,000,000 bales in excess of supply.

Given these figures, it is unnecessary to go farther in search of the cause for present prices.

As a matter of fact, with supply way behind demand, the prices are not high enough!

They may be expected to advance, since the steady tread of consumption upon the heels of production means the world next year will be no farther ahead of the game than at present.

It is also shown in the Pell analysis that were present prices doubled for the raw material, the added cost to the consumer would be barely perceptible. The cotton dress that weighs two pounds, and the shirt that weighs half a pound, is not going to be found on the prohibitive list should the staple itself increase five cents a pound in value.

But by far the most convincing argument exhibited is that even should the price of the staple go to thirty cents, no substitute could be found—wool, silk, flax, hemp, jute, whatnot—to compete on terms of equality with cotton.

The world must have cotton. It is one of the few indispensable staples. The price for which it is now selling, and promises to sell, is not only in response to economic laws, but is destined to climb higher. And it can go on soaring almost indefinitely without "bleeding" any of the parties to its handling or consumption.

The meat in the nut is that the cotton trade—jobbers, mills, importers, consumers—must make up their minds to that fact.

All and singular they must abandon hope, founded on utter fallacy, that prices are going to drop.

Once that bedrock principle is beaten into their heads, conditions in the textile field will readjust themselves, and the world go steadily forward, striving to do its best in meeting the appetite of new and broadening markets under every sun with the supplies at its command.

The most fortunate factor is that no one will thereby be the sufferer except unimaginative traders who have been "caught out" with contracts they cannot fill—contracts based upon guesswork rather than upon sound economic study.

And, at bottom, it is this class mainly responsible for the curious psychological conditions now obtaining in the trade.

THE TALLULAH FALLS INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

The average business man of Georgia will spend the trivial sum of $1,000 for relaxation and small pleasures in a year.

That amount, invested in the industrial school founded and maintained by the club women of Georgia at Tallulah Falls, will complete, at least for the present, the equipment of one of the most useful institutions in the state.

Through their own efforts, members of the Federation have acquired a five-acre site, a $3,000 building, containing model furniture and equipment, and with the aid of Rabun and Habersham counties, have employed two trained teachers for ten months last year and nine months this year, at an expense of $120 a month.

The regular session of the school, which is operated for the industrial training of mountain children, opened April 1.

There is insufficient accommodation for the teachers, and no accommodation at all for boarding the pupils who come from a distance, and who must live near the school if they are to enjoy its advantages at all.

This pressing need is to be met by the construction of a model cottage which shall suitably house the teachers, and provide accommodations for twelve boarders.

The lumber has been contributed. The sum of $1,000 will complete the work.

The club women are themselves endeavoring to raise this amount. But the business men, the people generally of Georgia, should not let them carry the burden unaided.

The balance needed could be subscribed in less than an hour did Georgians fully realize the splendid mission upon which the school is engaged.

Illiteracy is not confined to the mountain counties of Georgia, nor is need for attacks upon it peculiar to that locality.

But in no other section is the situation more appealing. The isolation of the mountains and the backwardness of industrial development have brought their penalties, and it is in an effort to mitigate these that the club women have concentrated their efforts on the Tallulah Falls institution.

In July, 1909, the school opened with twenty-six scholars. Six months later, they closed, with difficulty, upon sixty-four children, begging the opportunity for education the year round.

That statement, and the additional one that applications have poured in during the winter vacation, is sufficient testimonial of the need of the school—sufficient justification of the appeal to the people of Georgia to co-operate with the counties of Rabun and Habersham, and the club women, in its expansion and upkeep.

DR. WHITE ON THE Y. M. C. A.

Speaking in the name of "applied Christianity," Dr. John E. White yesterday made a powerful appeal for such wide Christian tolerance as would revise the present policy of the Young Men's Christian Association of accepting contributions and memberships from Jews, Catholics, and other non-Protestant sects, and yet denying to them participation in the institution's active management. Elsewhere The Constitution presents a full synopsis of Dr. White's sermon.

It is squarely in line with a recent editorial in which The Constitution indorsed the contention of former President Roosevelt, that if these non-Protestant or non-Christian sects were to be given the privilege of subscribing and of membership, they should be given the accompanying right of participation in management.

Dr. White vigorously supported the views of Colonel Roosevelt and of The Constitution.

"The Young Men's Christian Association," he said, "is avowedly without ecclesiastical character. In the course of its development its mission has assumed a pronounced civic relation to society."

Further developing his argument, Dr. White showed that both Jews and Catholics had contributed to and been solicited in behalf of the Boys' Club, and the Y. M. C. A., and asked, pertinently, "Have they not just ground for complaint that a line of exclusion is drawn against them when it comes to any further active participation either in the Boys' Club, which is now a part of the Y. M. C. A. work, or in the general organization?"

Throughout, his sermon is a clear appeal for liberality, a plea for rational Christianity, for the enforcement of the spirit of the creed of Christ no less than its written letter.

It will be difficult for the conscientious Christian minister or layman to escape the force of his logic, whether regarded from the sheerly Christian or the broad moral angle.

He is absolutely correct when he defines the Y. M. C. A. as a "clearing house for applied Christianity."

Among its first missions is the making of citizenship, and that is a field wide enough to admit Protestant, Catholic and Jew.

If it is to successfully and consistently discharge that mission, in the behalf of thousands of young men, in behalf of the future welfare of the community in which they are to live, it should not be circumscribed by the barest taint of proscription.

And proscription is inseparable from a policy that accepts contributions from all sects, admits most of them to membership, and yet excludes them from participation in management.

What say the ministers and the Christian laymen of Atlanta to Dr. White's strong and courageous plea for "applied Christianity," in connection with the Y. M. C. A.?

Take your time when you eat.' Say, what d'ye think of that? Abe Lincoln sopped his corn dodger in venison gravy and Dan Webster sopped his buckwheat cakes in maple syrup before there was a college west of the Mississippi—and they got into pretty good company 'fore they died. The pioneers sopped buffalo meat gravy off'n tin plates, when they were chasin' the Indians from the prairies, and breakin' the sod to make the farms, and they were pretty good citizens. Say, don't you think it'd be better for them fellers to put in all their time at college learning how to put good hog gravy, and plenty of it, on the table to sop, than to be worryin' how they are going to get it into their systems in a way to please society folks?"

"COREY," TOWN THAT GROWS IN A NIGHT

A handsome and interesting booklet recently issued is the Jemison Magazine, devoted to views and descriptions of Corey, the model town now building near Birmingham.

Corey has sprung up, almost literally, overnight.

Patterned after the methods followed at Garey, in Illinois, it promises to exemplify the last word from the standpoints of comfort of operatives and as an example to other municipalities.

The Jemison Real Estate and Insurance Company, of Birmingham, is most actively pushing the project.

The illustrations are attractive and the reading matter educative.

A Sea Lyric.

There is no music that man has heard
Like the voice of the minstrel sea,
Whose major and minor chords are fraught
With infinite mystery.
For the sea is a harp, and the winds of God
Play over his rhythmic breast
And bear on the sweep of their mighty wings
The song of a vast unrest.

There is no passion that man has sung
Like the love of the deep-souled sea,
Whose tide responds to the moon's soft light
With a marvelous melody.
For the sea is a harp, and the winds of God
Play over his rhythmic breast
And bear on the sweep of their mighty wings
The song of a vast unrest.

There is no sorrow that man has known
Like the grief of the wordless main,
Whose Titan bosom forever throbs
With an untranslated pain.
For the sea is a harp, and the winds of God
Play over his rhythmic breast
And bear on the sweep of their mighty wings
The song of a vast unrest.

And how can man die better
Than facing fearful odds
For the ashes of his fathers
And the temples of his gods?

Through poisoned food and drink.

DEMAND IN EXCESS OF SUPPLY; JUST PRICES ASSURED FOR COTTON

Contrary to its usual practice, The Constitution herewith reproduces, in toto, a circular sent out by the firm of S. H. P. Pell & Co., of New York.

The circular so incisively analyzes present confused conditions in the textile trade, and so unanswerably demonstrates why cotton will rapidly increase in price, as to be worth the attention of every consumer, every mill owner, every jobber and every farmer.

The pith of the Pell contention is that for some years world demand for cotton has been far in excess of supply, and that that fact explains present prices and their inevitable upward drift.

"Let the Seller Beware."

The circular follows:

"It is a condition and not a theory that confronts us in the cotton trade. Cotton comes nearer being a medium of exchange between countries than any other commodity. In time of peace or war; in time of panic or prosperity, the value of cotton is known and understood in every country where clothes are worn, and statements that its price should follow the price of other commodities or the market tendencies of stocks or bonds are incorrect. It is one of the prime necessaries of life, and a drop in the prices of all other commodities however necessary leaves more money in the pockets of consumers, and therefore produces among the poor a greater ability to buy cotton clothing.

"Moreover, the price of cotton is not regulated only by the demand within the United States. The market is the world, and world conditions demand always more cotton. This demand is so steady in its growth and so persistent and eager under all circumstances largely because the price of raw cotton may rise without raising the price of cotton fabrics in anything approaching the same proportion.

"The only competitors cotton has are wool, silk, flax, hemp and jute, and none of these would supplant it were cotton double its present price. It is essentially the clothing material of the poor, but were present prices doubled in value for the raw material, the change in price of the finished garment would hardly be appreciable. A cotton dress weighs about two pounds, and a cotton shirt less than one-half a pound; to add 5 cents per pound to the price of a cotton crop would add 10 cents to the price of each dress and 2½ cents to the price of each shirt; but it would add $200,000,000 to the wealth of this country because of the enhanced value of our exports.

Selling for Less Than They Can Buy.

"The reason cotton is now so cheap (as in reality it is), is that a number of people who know but little and care less about actual conditions have been willing to contract for the delivery of an article they do not possess and cannot obtain, and because intermediaries, wholesale and retail, have ignored from month to month, and year to year, the constant shrinkage of the stocks of manufactured goods in the broad markets of the world, and watched the narrow horizon of the consumption of our own country. However, even in this country, the speculator and the spinner are both today in serious need of cotton to fill their commitments and the wholesale and retail merchants have listened so long to the promise that a new crop prospect would fill their shelves with cheap goods that the first period of uncertainty in regard to the new crop will leave them in a serious situation.

"We do not care to predict the size of the next crop, but we will predict that all of that crop (regardless of its size) will not fill the gaps in the available supply left by the last two years.

"We do not care to predict the price at which the remnant of this crop will sell, but our judgment is that so long as contract prices are three or four dollars per bale less than actual spot prices, there will be someone to buy and receive the cotton on contracts in order to supply the normal trade demands of this and other countries.

"We do not care to predict at just what point the ultimate consumer will look about to find some substitute for cotton, but we are confident that if cotton were 10 cents per pound higher than it now stands it would add only $2.50 per annum to the cost of living of the individual and it would add $400,000,000 (or $4 per capita) to the wealth of this country.

Gap Between Supply and Demand.

"The subjoined table differentiates between mills takings and actual consumption. The first three columns are Secretary Hester's figures, the last column a very conservative deduction from statements of the census department.

Year.	Crop.	Mills Takings.	Mills Consumption.	Actually Used By Ultimate Consumer.
1904	13,565,000	12,425,000	11,828,000	11,700,000
1905	11,345,000	12,036,000	12,166,000	12,000,000
1906	13,510,000	13,060,000	12,811,000	12,500,000
1907	11,571,000	11,947,000	11,885,000	12,600,000
1908	13,825,000	13,116,000	13,314,000	12,900,000
1909	10,610,000	11,274,000	11,774,000	13,200,000
1910	12,000,000?	12,000,000?	12,000,000?	13,500,000
Totals	86,426,000	86,080,000	85,390,000	22,200,000

"It should not be forgotten that in cotton we are a producing rather than a consuming country. Last year we produced 69 per cent of the world's cotton crop and consumed only 26 per cent.

"Cotton constitutes more than half of our entire exports, and the era of high prices which have obtained during the past two years has compelled Europe to send us more than one billion dollars in gold or its equivalent in that short period of time. (Had the 7 to 8-cent prices of seven years ago been current during the past two years, European remittances would have been four hundred and fifty million dollars less.)

"There is no mystery as to the true reason for the present prices of cotton. It is that consumption is progressing more rapidly than production, and neither the present price of cotton, nor in fact any price under 30 cents per pound will in any way affect the consumption by the ultimate consumer, who, even at such a price, could not find a satisfactory substitute.

"The narrow horizon of Worth street conditions is a poor viewpoint of the world's needs of cloth made of cotton.

"The quantity of cotton which mills 'take,' or the quantity which they spin into cloth is not consumption. Whether a mill can make a profit by selling goods predicated upon market views and afterwards buying the raw material is of not nearly so vital importance as many seem to think.

"It is unfair to attribute the present range of values to speculation or manipulation, since present contract prices are very much cheaper than the spot article and if such accusations had any foundation whatever it would be that prices were manipulated downward and not upward.

"Of this 86,426,000 bales, which constitute the seven largest crops of history, 2,121,000 bales were 'linters' and had but little commercial value, and it might be added that for the figures used to show the 'ultimate consumers'' actual consumption expressed in running bales we have used figures actually 300,000 bales per annum smaller than those suggested as expressing the potential needs of the world by the census department.

"The showing as it stands is striking enough, since it shows that the last seven crops, large as they were, have lacked two million bales (possibly four millions) of being large enough to fill the demand, and it raises a powerful presumption that the needs of the coming year will exceed those of any previous year in history.

"There is a dividing line in the price limits of foodstuffs where the high price of meat will increase the sale of fish, or where the high prices of cereals will increase the consumption of rice or potatoes, but there is no price of cotton in close proximity to present levels that will prevent a continued increase of the consumption of the greatest money producer and the greatest textile in the civilized world —COTTON. Expert Opticians

What This Means to You

The difference between an optician and an EXPERT optician is just simply the difference between a careless, incompetent workman and a thoroughly conscientious man of exceptional ability.

It would be foolish to ask you which kind of an optician you would want to examine YOUR eyes and fit YOUR glasses.

Our nearly fifty years serving the public has taught us that THE SUCCESS OF A PAIR OF GLASSES DEPENDS UPON THE EXPERT, TECHNICAL ABILITY AND JUDGMENT OF THE OPTICIAN MAKING THE EXAMINATION.

When you are in need of glasses, may we have the pleasure of serving you with this kind of ability?

CITY NEWS

Robbed by Pickpockets.—P. L. Elder, elevator boy in the Candler building, was the victim of pickpockets Saturday, who stole from him a purse containing $13.25. The purse was in a hip pocket, and it is supposed the thieves took advantage of a crowded car to extract it without rousing suspicion.

Take European Trip.—Mr. and Mrs. Sig Samuels will sail April 29 for Europe, going direct to Breslau, where they will visit Mr. Samuels' parents. From there they will make a tour of the continent—Germany, France, Italy and the Netherlands, and England, Ireland and Scotland. Their itinerary is arranged to put them in London for the coronation. Mr. and Mrs. Samuels will spend the entire summer in Europe, not returning until September 1.

Harvest for Burglars.—The past week was harvest time for the burglars, and more such thefts were reported than during any similar period this year. Mrs. Hearn, 56 Powell street, lost $41, which she is confident was taken by a white man from a drawer, when he came to her husband's place of business. The barber shop of W. H. Lloyd, 177 Peters street, was broken open and razors and towels taken off by the thieves. M. Cohen's residence, 45 North Broad, was despoiled of all the plumbing fixtures, valued at more than $50. The store of Morris & Thomas, 70 Currier street, was burglarized and a quantity of hams and other groceries stolen. Besides these cases there have been numerous other minor ones where clothing was the the loot. The police have been unable to locate any of the thieves

OUTDOOR GYMNASIUM OPENED BY BOYS' CLUB

Initial Physical Test Saturday Night Under Prof. Graydon Big Success.

The Boys' Club opened its outdoor gymnasium Saturday night, and it proved a big success. Professor E. L. Graydon, the physical director, and a large number of the boys spent the entire afternoon Saturday in getting the ground in the rear of the club, at 52 and 54 Houston street, ready for the first outdoor class on Saturday night.

Pole vaulting and jumping were the features which were taken up, and some of the boys came very near breaking the city records. The next physical test will be held in the open air on Tuesday, April 25.

Tonight, at 7 o'clock, will be held a special meeting of the Arkwright fraternity, and at 7:45 o'clock a very important Emma Neal Third Degree meeting will be held.

Early Closing in Macon.

Macon, Ga., April 16.—(Special.)—The movement for early closing here has resulted in practically all of the retail houses signing an agreement to close from the present date to September 1, at 6 o'clock each afternoon, except Saturdays. During the summer only the drug stores, soda-water fountains, and fruit stands will be open after 6 o'clock.

ANTI-SHARK BANK WILL OPEN SOON

Remaining Shares Must Be Subscribed This Week.

There are yet to be subscribed 394 shares of the necessary 1,000 before the Fidelity Mutual Savings and Trust Company can begin its work of saving the wage-earners from the loan sharks, and to complete the canvass this week the committee, of which W. Woods White is chairman, will meet in his office at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon to map out a plan of action.

Confident ofhaving the full $50,000 subscribed before the week ends, the preliminary steps for drawing up a charter for the company are being made. In this work Arthur J. Morris, of Norfolk, Va., originator of the plan, is assisting the Atlanta attorneys.

A large number of responses have come in to the committee from persons who say that they are desirous of subscribing to some of the stock. It is hoped that these will forward their formal applications at once so that they will not be disappointed.

The committee intends to canvass Atlanta thoroughly and do some personal explanation among those who ought to subscribe but are keeping in the background. It is said that the plan of the bank is so harmonious as to make quite an attractive opportunity for a sure investment. While small loans are let at the legal rate, they are paid back in weekly installments. This makes it easy for the borrower and at the same time the money being paid back is put to work again.

There is an enormous need of such an institution in Atlanta. There has not been denial of that fact from any source. The extent to which the loan sharks prey on small borrowers is notorious and the Fidelity Mutual is intended to meet this demand for small loans in a legitimate way.

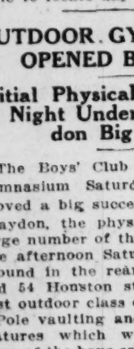

The shares are $50 each. Each individual is limited to twenty shares.

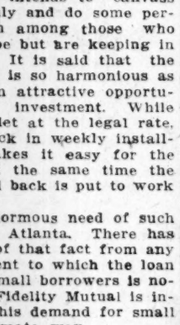

POSTAL BANK DEPOSITS ARE STEADILY GROWING

Washington, April 16.—(Special.) Deposits in the 48 postal savings banks of the country are steadily increasing and now amount to $200,000. Forty-five new offices are to be opened May 1. The experiment began on January 3.

Brunswick, Ga., is now twenty-fourth on the list of banks in the amount of deposits. There are 49 accounts and $1,695 on deposit in the savings system.

PLEA FOR JEWS AND CATHOLICS

Dr. White Preaches on Relation to Y. M. C. A.

Relation to the Jews Should Be Wholly Winsome, and to the Catholics Intentionally Inclusive, Declares the Minister.

Preaching on the relation of the Young Men's Christian Association to the Jews and the Catholics, Dr. John E. White, pastor of the Second Baptist church, in his sermon last night declared it should be "in the case of the one wholly winsome and in the case of the other intentionally inclusive."

"The Young Men's Christian Association is avowedly without ecclesiastical character. It is an organization devoted to fundamental Christianity. In the course of its development its mission has assumed a pronounced civic relation to society. It is the clearing house for applied Christianity. It appeals to all classes of citizens as a factor in the common moral life.

"It does not appeal to Protestants as the champion, the Protestant side of a controversy nor to Christians as a function of their theology. It protests that it is not a church and does not in anywise undertake to do what the churches are set to do.

"The Y. M. C. A. must take one position or another. It must assume to take cognizance of matters of Christian faith and practice and when it does it will go up in a conflagration of sectarian controversy; or it must take its position squarely and carry it to its logical conclusion, of a negative attitude towards controverted questions of Christianity, and on that basis undertake to represent the pure spirit of Christ in the community, as that spirit is expressed in the amelioration and redemption of society."

Dr. White's Sermon.

The sermon in full follows:

Text: Acts X.

"Cornelius, a devout man and one that feared God with all his house, which gave much alms to the people and prayed to God always. And Peter said unto them, ye know how it is an unlawful thing for a man who is a Jew to keep company or come in unto one of another nation, but God hath showed me that I should not call any man common or unclean. Of a truth I perceive that God is no respector of persons, but in every nation he that feareth Him and worketh righteousness is accepted with Him."

In a land of Jews, Catholics and some twenty divergent Protestant denominations of Christianity, the tenth chapter of the Acts of the Apostles should be read very frequently. In the Young Men's Christian Association building which we are soon to erect in Atlanta out of money contributed from all creeds and sects, this scripture might be appropriately illuminated upon its walls. It is the passage that tells how Christianity was saved from disaster at the outset and it indicates the ultimate principle of safety for Christianity today and for the Christianity of the future.

It relates the story of Peter and Cornelius, the new-fledged preacher of the gospel, and the captain of an Italian regiment, the Jewish Christian and the Gentile saint: One was a man who bore Christ's name and represented his organization, who had not, however, been converted fully to Christ's spirit; the other a man who had the spirit of Christ, but had not been converted to His name or identified with His organization. The question was forced upon Peter whether there should be permitted any sort of religious fellowship between this man whose noble religious character was well known among the Jews, and those who with him were in direction of the Christian church at Jerusalem. Up to this time the policy had been to allow no sort of relations religiously or socially with Gentiles unless they first should come to the synagogue and conform to requirements. The Jewish Christians, as the scripture states, recognized the splendid character of a man like Cornelius; doubtless received and indorsed the benefits of his charity but denied that there could be a ground of fellowship between them. The point of the Scripture is that Christianity does have a basis of fellowship with every man whether he bear the name of Christian or not, who does God's work in the world and is fed of God's spirit. This principle was fixed for the guidance of Christians and for the furtherance of the gospel at the beginning. Therefore instead of being a compromise of Christian principles for those who bear the name of Christ to recognize and work with those who are outside the Christian fold in God's good work for men, it is the strictest New Testament orthodoxy and is pre-eminently the position Jesus Christ would have His followers maintain.

The Jews, Catholics and Y. M. C. A.

The old question which was there settled for Peter and the early Christians has come to question again in the matter of the Young Men's Christian Association and the Jews and Catholics in this country. Ex-President Roosevelt, in his speech at Reno, Nev., took occasion to criticise the Young Men's Christian Association for its action in formally excluding the Catholics from any share in the management of Young Men's Christian Associations. Here in our own city it has had recently a quiet but very considerable agitation. Now, a preacher's position on this question should be neither broader nor narrower than his interpretation of Christianity. If I should say that I was determined to have nothing to do with the Jews and Catholics because of doctrines concerning the person of Christ or concerning ecclesiastical administration, I might possibly, as many do, justify myself on the ground that this was the way to make a protest for the doctrines which I greatly cherish. But when the question of having to do with the Jews and the Catholics in genuinely good work is presented so as not to involve these cherished doctrines, a position of resentment and exclusion straightway becomes a flat violation of the spirit of Christ and the spirit of Christianity in the New Testament. I am governed in that case by a prejudice and a bias which can be defended only by the abandonment of essential orthodoxy.

It should be kept in mind that the Young Men's Christian Association jealously carries the word "Christian" at its masthead. Abiding by what that word means its relation to Jews and Catholics should in the case of the one be wholly winsome, and in the case of the other intentionally inclusive. The Young Men's Christian Association is avowedly without ecclesiastical character. It is an organization devoted to fundamental Christianity. In the course of its development its mission has assumed a pronounced civic relation to society. It is the clearing house for applied Christianity. It appeals to all classes of citizens as a factor in the common moral life. It does not appeal to Protestants as the champion of the Protestant side of a controversy, nor to Christians as a function of their theology. It protests that it is not a church and that it does not in anywise undertake to do what the churches are set to do. It is true that a great many Christians do not support the Young Men's Christian Association; some on the ground that it invades the field of the church, and others on the ground, strange to say, that it is too liberal in its views and slurs over vital denominational controversies. The Young Men's Christian Association must take one position or the other. It must assume to take cognizance of matters of Christian faith and practice and when it does it will go up in a conflagration of sectarian controversies; or it must take its position squarely and carry it to its logical conclusion of a negative attitude toward controverted questions in Christianity, and on that basis undertake to represent the pure spirit of Christ in the community, as that spirit is expressed in the amelioration and redemption of society. I understand that in its operation in papal lands and among the pagan peoples, the association disavows any exclusiveness whatever with respect to the people among whom it is working. It should be equally consistent in this country.

The Jews in Atlanta.

It is well known that in Atlanta the Jews were particularly interested in the work of the Boys' Club. They had contributed to it, and when it needed friends, had furnished leadership for its cause. When the campaign for the Young Men's Christian Association was in progress, they were solicited, and made generous response. Have they not just ground for complaint that a line of exclusion is drawn against them when it comes to any further active participation either in the Boys' Club, which is now a part of the Y. M. C. A. work, or in the general organization? From the standpoint of a Christian, my judgment and conviction is that wherever a Jew can be brought to work under Christian auspices and under an organization with an avowedly Christian title, something is lost that ought not to be lost, both on the Jew's account and on the account of Christianity, when participation is made impossible. I have said, and say again, that the one man in all the world for whom the Christian should have a profound religious regard and an unfailing spirit of sympathy and affection is the Jew. We owe to him more than we can ever realize. Jesus Christ was a Jew. The apostles were mainly Jews. The foundations of Christianity are Jewish. The original resolution, and the yet unsatisfied intention of the gospel, concerns the Jew in the purpose of God. My plea is that Christianity with reference to the Jewish people shall allow itself to assume no attitude which tends to drive the Jew further from Christ. Rather should we so interpret the love of God in Christ to Him that He shall see of a truth, as Cornelius readily saw, that Jehovah, God whom he worships and serves, is the very God revealed in and through our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

Complaint Against Catholics.

Likewise, with reference to the Catholics. Protestants have complained and are still complaining against Catholic exclusiveness and the spirit which we regard as un-Christian. Where Catholic Christianity is predominant, our democratic Protestant Christianity complains of the stone wall of exclusion, and we call it Catholic persecution. Now, where Protestant Christianity is predominant, we have the supreme opportunity of proving that our complaints against Catholic exclusion and persecution are genuine and sincere. Where conditions are reversed, we should practice the principle of Christian hospitality. If it is said that the Catholics do not want and will not allow themselves the privilege of cooperations with Protestants, the situation is, of course, irremediable. But I submit that something has been gained for Christianity, and for Protestants as well, by the exemplification of a genuinely Christian spirit on our part.

I believe with all my heart both in the doctrines and the principles and the practices of evangelical Christianity. As a Baptist, I am devoted to the interpretations of the New Testament according to the Baptists; but, over and above any allegiance I owe to the Baptist denomination, I set my allegiance and my loyalty to the absolute authority of God, whose will and whose spirit is revealed through Jesus Christ. This I understand to be the true faith of Christianity. I should never like to be toward Jews and Catholics other than God revealed to Peter he should be toward Cornelius. I think this is the true ideal of Christian progress. I do not believe that the kingdom of God is to be got forward by the policy of exclusion and reprisal against those whom it desires to win, or against those who are willing to help it on, and even desire to do so.

WHITE LIGHT FALLS ON MACON TIGERS

Wholesale Indictments Are Expected by Bibb Grand Jury This Week.

Macon, Ga., April 16.—(Special.)—The grand jury will meet tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, at which time the April term of the superior court will also convene. The grand jury's chief business will be the investigation into the liquor traffic in Macon.

Wholesale indictments are expected. Every railroad office in the city has been summoned to produce its accounts, books, and receipts, showing the delivery of shipments of whisky.

The previous grand jury made war on the gamblers, returning twenty indictments against the members of that fraternity.

EASTER SUNDAY BEAUTIFUL DAY

Splendid Music and Pretty Clothes Galore.

Easter Parade in Evidence Throughout the Morning. Churches Are Filled With Record Attendance--Churches Are Decorated.

After a week of dismal weather Easter morning dawned as bright and fair as heart could desire and throngs of Atlantans, decked out in spring finery, filled the many churches with record attendances.

It was as if the weather man had purposely ordained the gloomy days of the past week so that Easter might shine the more resplendant by contrast. Certain it is that anyone would have cheerfully voted to suffer the spell of bad weather had he had the assurance of such an Easter to come.

There was a slight snap to the temperature which made the atmosphere doubly invigorating. This chilliness, however, was counteracted by a warm sun which enabled the promenaders to don their lighter garments and thus add to the general attractiveness of the scenery.

Easter Lily and Bonnet.

The Easter lily and the Easter bonnet, the two symbols of the occasion, were everywhere in evidence. The pulpits and altars of the churches were decorated with profusions of pale, white flowers, while, adorning the heads of the feminine worshipers, while, adorning the heads of the feminine worshipers, were creations of the milliner's art that were wonderful to behold. There were hats of all shapes, sizes and colors, festooned with all kinds of foliage and plumage known to field and fowl.

In the majority of the churches music played the leading role in the services. Masterpices of the writers of sacred song were rendered by choirs and soloists that had been carefully training for months past. The sermons for the most part were short messages breathing forth the spirit of the resurrection.

The regular choir of Trinity Methodist church was augmented by a large chorus, and two anthems, "Christ Our Pasover," and "Awake Thou That Sleepest," were features of the musical program. Dr. John Robins, the pastor, preached to a congregation that crowded the auditorium.

Park Street Methodist church, of which Rev. S. R. Belk is pastor, drew a big congregation and the music was especially appropriate, a large chorus assisting the regular choir.

Wesley Memorial church presented a scene which made the heart of the pastor, Rev. Frank Siler, glad, preaching to one of the largest congregations of the year. The choir and orchestra rendered its special Easter music in a manner that showed careful training and the services throughout were appropriate of the occasion.

St. Mark Methodist and St. John's Methodist churches rang with gladsome Easter music and in all other Methodist churches of the city the services were marked with unusually beautiful music and large congregations.

Dr. Junius W. Millard Preaches.

Special Easter services were conducted at the Central Congregational church by Rev. Junius W. Millard, who preached to a congregation that taxed the church's seating capacity on "The Empty Tomb." Miss Roberta Hall and Fantille Davis, sopranos, Mrs. Mark White, contralto, assisted the regular choir, and a bass solo by F. Harker, "As It Began to Dawn," was a feature of the pretty musical program.

An elaborate program including, many of the most beautiful works of composers of sacred music, was rendered at the high mass service in the Church of the Immaculate Conception. At 3:30 a children's mass with special music was held.

At the Church of the Incarnation the anthem, "Hallelujah, Christ Is Risen," and a number of well-known selections from the chant book made the services especially beautiful.

Easter music at St. Luke's Episcopal church was rendered by a choir of forty voices, the program consisting of such well-known numbers as "Te Deum," "Jubilate," "Christ, Our Passover," and "As It Began to Dawn."

A soprano solo, "Come, See the Place," sung by Mrs. T. H. Wingfield at the First Presbyterian church, and two anthems, "In the End of the Sabbath," and "Sing Ye to the Lord," were features of the musical program, the pastor, Dr. Walter Lingle, preached a splendid Easter sermon to a great congregation.

The offertory anthem at North Avenue Presbyterian church was "Christ Our Passover," and the singing of the anthem, "They Have Taken Away My Lord," was appropriate of the occasion.

A sunrise service was held at 6:15 o'clock by the congregation of the English Lutheran church, a special musical program having been arranged.

Sunday School Rally.

Rev. Thornwell Jacobs preached at the First Christian church by special request on "Intimations of Immortality." The special music arranged for the day was a beautiful feature. "And Behold, There Was a Great Earthquake," "Lift Up Your Glad Voices," and "The King of Glory" were among the numbers.

Westminster Presbyterian church drew a large congregation and a beautiful musical program was rendered by the regular choir, assisted by special voices.

The services at St. Philip's cathedral were marked by an especially interesting musical program rendered by a well-trained chorus.

Ponce de Leon Baptist church had its regular choir augmented and the music rendered was the feature of the services.

The musical program at Sacred Heart church was rendered by a chorus of forty voices and a boy chancel choir with four solos. The services were largely attended, every available seat being filled.

First Methodist Crowded.

At the First Methodist church, every seat in the spacious auditorium was taken and the balcony was crowded. The musical program, breathing the spirit of the occasion, was rendered by the regular choir and Rev. Dr. Joel T. Daves, presiding elder of the Atlanta district, preached a strong sermon on the importance of the resurrection.

All Saints' was thronged to the doors an hour before the processional started. When the choir had reached its place in the chancel the ushers placed chairs in all the aisles, but even then there were many people who had to stand. One of the most beatiful musical numbers was the offertory anthem, "What Seek Ye?" by Alfred Hollins.

BAGGAGE RATES BEFORE COUNCIL

Committee Will Make Report at Regular Meeting This Afternoon.

The general council will meet this afternoon at 3 o'clock in regular semi-monthly session.

One of the most important matters to be considered is a report from a special committee, Councilman Stoy chairman, on an ordinance fixing new schedules for cab and baggage rates. It is understood that the committee will have a report ready, and that the rates to be made on baggage will be somewhat similar to those now charged for cab hire.

The street committee will make a report on the widening of Mitchell street, and will recommend that the land donated and the money subscribed be accepted, and that the work of widening the street be commenced at once.

The ordinance committee, adopting the recommendation of the police board, will report favorably an ordinance which will make the afternoon session of police court 2:30 instead of 1 o'clock. The court hour was changed to 1 o'clock two weeks ago. The policemen on the evening watch made a vigorous "kick," and the change back to 2:30 o'clock is the result of their efforts.

The sewer committee will make a divided report, the committee standing half and half on whether or not churches shall be exempted from paying assessments for sewers. One-half of the committee favors the old plan of charging the churches 25 per cent of the cost of laying sewers, while the other half of the committee advocates charging the churches nothing.

MEMORIAL TO BASS HEARTILY COMMENDED

Though the committees to collect contributions for the Professor W. A. Bass monument have not yet begun work, voluntary contributions are still being received, and President James L. Mayson, of the Boys' High School Alumni Association, is daily getting letters from old pupils of the beloved educator, commending the movement toward getting a monument.

Following is a letter received Saturday by President Mayson:

Hon. J. L. Mayson, Atlanta, Ga.—Dear Sir: As one who always entertained for him the highest admiration as a man, the greatest respect as a teacher, and the warmest regard and affection as a friend, I want to subscribe to the fund being raised to secure for Professor W. A. Bass a fitting monument to mark his last resting place. I inclose a check for $5.

I never had a better or truer friend, and his teachings, his example and his noble, rugged character have exercised a great and a marked influence for good upon my own life until now, and will continue to do so throughout the remainder of my days.

Peace be to his ashes.

Yours truly,
WM. J. HOLLINGSWORTH,

WARM FIGHT EXPECTED ON CHARTER AMENDMENT

Report Would Give Council the Right to Fill All Unexpired Terms.

Over a report from the ordinance committee in regard to a resolution calling for a charter amendment so council can elect members to fill unexpired terms, there will probably be this afternoon one of those municipal affairs commonly known as council "scraps."

The committee is going to report that it favors a charter amendment so council can elect aldermen and councilmen to fill unexpired terms, without any regard to a city election or primary.

As several members of council are wedded to the principle of ward elections, they will contend that if council elects to fill vacancies there must be a ward election prior to the election by council.

WITH THE TRAVELERS

The joint committee of the numerous traveling men's associations, which has been diligently working for the abolishment of the mileage rule, reports through Corresponding Secretary H. M. Ashe that the prospects are the rule will be done away with.

The joint committee was promised a report on the proceedings of the traffic committee of the railroads by April 15. A letter, stating that other business interfered with taking action on the matter, but that they would begin work and report about the first of May, was received by Mr. Ashe. J. H. Andrews, secretary of the local T. P. A., states he expects the action taken by the traffic board to be of great benefit to the traveling men.

J. C. Cooley, a former traveling salesman with the Davidson-Barrett Hardware Company of Gainesville, Ga., is now with the Beck & Gregg Company of this city.

The regular meeting of the local T. P. A. was held Saturday night at the Piedmont convention hall. Nothing of interest was discussed, beyond the work of the recent state convention held in Augusta.

Plans are being made for the annual state convention of the T. P. A., to be held in Atlanta next year. This is a much-discussed event, and great interest is being manifested. The exact dates have not as yet been set, but will probably be arranged shortly. This convention will bring to Atlanta thousands of traveling salesmen from over the state, and will probably be the largest ever held by the association.

YELLOW JACKETS PLAY AUBURN

The Tech Yellow Jackets open up a strenuous week today, when they play a game with Auburn at Tech flats. The two clubs will also play again on Monday.

Newell, the prize twirler of the Auburnites, is sure to make the Jackets run to win the game. He has the edge on anything in the twirling line that Tech can boast of, but in the other departments of play the edge is, if any, with the Jackets.

But this thing "edge" does not figure in the least when Tech and Auburn are playing. The two clubs always tie up in a mighty tight game, and it is never won until the last man is out.

Wednesday and Thursday will be off days, but on Friday and Saturday the Trinity College boys come for games with the Jackets. This bunch is being touted to win the southern college title as the rivals of the University of Georgia, and their presence in Atlanta should draw big crowds to the games.

LADIES WILL NOT STAND IN LINE

There seems to be a mistaken opinion going around in regard to the ladies' complimentary tickets on Ladies' days, the idea getting out that the ladies would have to wait in line at the box office to have tickets given to them.

This is in error. There will be a special window for the purpose of giving ladies' complimentary tickets away to every lady who appears at the grounds. Nothing else will be given out from this window. All that is necessary is is a lady to present herself there, and the ticket will be promptly handed to her. There will be none of the wait that would naturally be occasioned if the ladies had to stand in line at the regular box-office window.

Tomorrow is the first Ladies' day of the season, and they will be admitted free. No season tickets this year; just free tickets issued at this window. The club is to be complimented on this new step in its liberal policy this season.

Memphis, Tenn., April 16.—Before one of the largest crowds that ever witnessed a baseball game in Memphis, the locals defeated Nashville in a fast game this afternoon, 2 to 0. Except for the first inning, when Memphis batted in two runs, both Allen, for the locals and Case for Nashville, were well-nigh invincible, the rally of Memphis in the first inning bringing in the only runs of the game.

COVELESKI MAY TWIRL TODAY

Smith Will Probably Use the "Pole."

Britton or Miller to Hurl for Atlanta--Zimmerman to Take Moran's Place in Left Field. No Other Changes---Game at 3:30 O'Clock.

The Giant killing Pole, Harry Coveleski, will probably be sent to the mound by Manager Billy Smith in today's game against the Crackers, the second of the series.

Coveleski's debut will be watched with considerable interest. Last season he was a regular bear cat as a member of the Birmingham Barons, going to the big leagues from there. This year he is touted to be a "bloomer" just the same as he was in the big leagues, the dope being that he is so thin-skinned that he lets the coachers worry him when he is pitching.

As to the truth of this state of affairs, today's game will probably tell, for be it said now, that if the Pole does pitch, the Crackers' coaches are going after him, with the hope of getting his goat. They did it very effectively last season, and Ed Ashenback's tactics, which proved so successful against the Pole in the Tri State League, will probably be used here.

Britton or Miller.

Britton, who finished the game Saturday for Crabble, will probably take up the burden at the start of the game today for the Crackers, though there is a probability of Walter Miller being used.

Miller is in good shape now and Manager Jordan is authority for the statement that Miller twirls one of the hardest balls to hit that he has ever faced, so there is a possibility of the former Fort Wayne star being selected for the Crackers' twirler.

It looks now like the weather man is going to dish out an article of weather fit for a ball game, something that he has not dished out as yet, the day Saturday being decidedly raw for baseball.

If Coveleski is not the man selected by Manager Smith, he will probably send More or Demaree to the mound. The final selection will hardly be made until just before the game, after the former Cracker mogul will want to see who is in the best form, as he is mighty anxious to win the game.

Manager Jordan is doubly anxious to cop this game, as he believes that the Crackers just handed the game to the Lookouts on a platter on Saturday, and it was just about that way. In picking Miller and Britton to twirl, he is trying out probably his two best right-handers of the new men—men whom he thinks will eventually stick when the final weeding-out process arrives.

The rest of the batting orders of both teams will be the same as on Saturday, with one exception.

Zimmerman in Left.

Heinie Zimmerman will make his debut in left field, taking Roy Moran's place. The speed merchant from the New York State League, who swiped 105 bases for Utica last season, is in grand shape, and believes that he will deliver the goods.

Zimmerman came to Atlanta highly touted. Manager Jordan knows what Moran can do, and he wants to see what Zimmerman can do. Now is a better time than any other, as it is a close series, and Heinie will be placed on his mettle to show.

Zimmerman's ability is not certain. In the games that he has worked he has shown himself a man of speed, with a good arm, and covering a world of ground in the outfield. How he will show at the bat remains to be seen. If he steps in with the hickory, he will smash himself to a regular berth.

ATLANTA.	CHATTANOOGA.
Corbin, cf.	Collins, lf.
Jordan, 2b.	Sentell, ss.
Watson, rf.	Cannell, rf.
O'Dell, 3b.	Hulswitt, 2b.

Chicago, April 16.—Pittsburg defeated Chicago, 4 to 1, here today in the first game of the series. Chicago's one run was made on a base on balls, a double and a single. A pass, two sacrifices and a single gave the visitors their first run. Two more were added with a single and a pair of errors. The last run was the result of a single, a double and a sacrifice.

The crowd was so large it overflowed into the outfield and a hit in this territory went for two bases.

FLAG TOURNAMENT FOR THE LADIES

On Tuesday afternoon, at 1 o'clock, the ladies of Atlanta will hold a golf tournament at East Lake.

This tournament will be known as a flag tournament. The entrance fee will be 50 cents, with a handsome silver loving cup for the prize. Each lady will be given a flag upon her arrival at the first tee.

For the benefit of those who do not know what a flag tournament is, the handicap of each lady is added to the bogey of the course, and when she has played the number of total strokes occasioned by the bogey and the handicap, she sticks up her flag. The lady that goes the furthest wins the tournament.

Dick's Dopum

There are four Smiths in the Southern League this year. Billy Smith, manager of Chattanooga; Red Smith, third-sacker of Nashville; Tony Smith, Mobile's third-sacker, and Happy Smith, Montgomery's right fielder.

There are two Millers and two Lindsays in the league. Atlanta has both the Millers, a pitcher and a catcher. The Lindsays are playing short for Nashville and New Orleans.

Catcher Gribbens, of Montgomery, and Catcher Higgins, of Chattanooga had the honor of making the most number of hits on the opening day, three each. But Gribbins got a double and a triple in his three.

"Yust look at dose German batteries in dose opening games." Hess and Angemeier, for New Orleans, and Fritz and Knotts, for Memphis. There was an Irish battery, too. Carmichael and Higgins, for Chattanooga.

There are certainly a bunch of peculiar names in the Sally League this season. Look at this list: Andrada, Vasterling, Gnadinger, Tague, Clunk, Kunkle, Guynup, Schenebers.

Sykes, of Atlanta, and Courtney, of Atlanta, handled the most number of chances at first base, on opening day, both having thirteen put-outs and one assist.

Marcan, of Birmingham, handled the most number of chances at second base, with six put-outs and five assists.

Walker, of Atlanta, had the most number of chances at shortstop, with four put-outs and four assists and one error.

Smith, of Mobile, had the most number of chances at third base, with five put-outs, three assists and one error.

Callahan, of New Orleans, led the outfielders, with eight put-outs.

Seabaugh, of Nashville, had the most number of chances among the catchers, with nine put-outs and three assists.

Carmichael, of Chattanooga, led the pitchers with one put-out and four assists.

The "Joss Day" planned by the Cleveland club, on which day all the proceeds will go to the family of the dead twirler, should prove a huge success.

Chick Evans, the golfer, who will represent American in the British open golf tournament, will leave Atlanta a week from Saturday for England.

Jim Lafitte, the Atlanta boy catching for Chattanooga, had to have an operation performed for an abscessed tooth. He should be all right today.

Georgia has now won nine straight games and leads for the college championship of the south. The Red and Black nine defeated Clemson twice, Mercer twice and Auburn five times.

"Mary" Calhoun, the Tech first-sacker, who debuted so successfully as a pitcher in the game on Saturday against Mercer, will probably be used as a pitcher for the rest of the season.

CARS MUST AVERAGE 70 MILES AN HOUR

"The car that wins the 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Speedway, May 30, will have to average better than 70 miles an hour for over seven hours," is the judgment of Joe Dawson, driver of the Marmon entry No. 31, for the big race. Dawson knows what to expect, for among other big events last season, he won the Savannah Challenge trophy at the wheel of one of the yellow Marmon cars, after the longest non-stop race on record, and in the Cobe trophy race at the Speedway, last May, his Marmon was first past the checkered flag after covering the 200 miles at an average of over 73 miles an hour.

RAILROAD LEAGUE OPENS SATURDAY

The fast Railroad League, composed of eight teams, will commence the season on Saturday under probably the best auspices of any of the city leagues.

The clubs composing this league are: The Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic railroad, Capitol View, Edgewood, Railroad Young Men's Christian Association, Southern Railway, Inman Yards, Southeastern Freight Association, Third National Bank, Western Union Telegraph Company.

The following is the schedule for Saturday:

A., B. & A. v. Capitol View.
Edgewood v. R. R. Y. M. C. A.
Southeastern Freight Association v. Southern Railway Inman Yards.
Third National Bank v. W. U. T. Co.

MERCER AND TECH PRAISE GRIFFIN'S HOSPITALITY

Griffin, Ga., April 16.—(Special.)—The Mercer and Tech baseball teams left Griffin last night, and this morning, singing the praises of Griffin for the splendid and cordial manner in which they were received and entertained here during the two days that they played on the Griffin diamond.

The Walker brothers, former students of Mercer, worked hard for the entertainment of the two teams, and showed them unstinted courtesies, while Editor Boyd turned the columns of his sprightly Griffin News over to the teams, not charging them a penny for the advertising of the games. Free buses were furnished the boys for transportation to and from the diamond, and a dance was given in their honor at the Commercial Club Saturday night.

The stores were profusely decorated with the colors of the two teams, and the boys were royally entertained and well cared for in Griffin—gem of Georgia. The Mercer team unanimously voted that the state capitol be removed to Griffin, provided Macon did not get it.

On Thursday, the Mountaineers come to Atlanta to tackle the Marist College boys, on the latter's diamond.

The week will wind up with a game with Peacock School, on Saturday. Stone Mountain's schedule is as follows:

$75,000 FOR WEST POINT IS SOUGHT BY ADAMSON

Money Wanted for Public Building --- Adamson Also Asks $50,000,000 for Roads.

Washington, April 16.—(Special) Representative Adamson has introduced a bill appropriating $75,000 for a public building at West Point. Under the program adopted by the democratic caucus, these local measures will not be considered at this extra session.

Mr. Adamson has also introduced a bill authorizing the government to cooperate in the construction of public highways to the extent of $50,000,000 a year. He believes that democratic management will provide the money for these improvements.

SOME STONE MOUNTAIN PERFORMERS

These lads are playing good ball for Stone Mountain this year. On the left is Cooper, captain and center fielder. He is from Lexington, Ga. In the center is Wilder, of Perry, Fla., probably the best pitcher and outfielder in prep school circles. On the right is Wheatley, the Americus lad who is playing a good first base.

BRYAN IS THORN IN PARTY'S SIDE

So Says Texas Politician Who Urges That Differences Be Settled.

Texarkana, Texas, April 16.—N. A. Shaw, a wealthy farmer, and prominent in Texas political circles, believes William J. Bryan is a thorn in the side of democracy, and that the tariff differences between Bryan and Bailey should be settled by debate in order not to imperil the ultimate unity of the party. Mr. Shaw states that he is willing to bear the financial expense attached to such debate personally, and to give the "gate receipts" to the commoner.

"A few months ago," says Mr. Shaw, in an open letter made public today, "it looked like the democrats would have the next presidency, and victory was ours; but, since Mr. Bryan's appearance in Washington, we have proven what I heard to be an expression of General Grant—that 'democrats could be depended upon to act like the fool at the proper time.'"

"I heard him say that Tolstoi was the greatest man the world ever produced," said Mr. Shaw; "but he skips the Sermon on the Mount, our Ten Commandments, and gives our country no credit for the man who wrote the Declaration of Independence."

DRUNKEN FATHER KILLED BY HIS SON

The Lad Didn't Fire Until Father Had Shot Four Times.

Charleston, S. C., April 16.—D. W. Murden, white, a car repairer in the employ of the Southern Railway, was shot and killed by his 16-year-old son, Isaac on Saturday night at his residence near Lincolnville, this state.

It is said that Murden had been drinking heavily on Saturday afternoon and he terrified his family by flourishing a double-barreled shotgun and threatening to kill them all.

Some of the girls of the family succeeded in getting the gun and hiding it, whereupon Murden boarded a train, came to Charleston, bought a new weapon and a box of cartridges and returned home. There, he found only his son Isaac waiting him, the rest of the family having fled in terror at his approach.

Murden fired a shot at the boy who was standing on the step and followed the lad when the latter fled into the house and hid behind a door. He fired three more shots at the boy before Isaac brought a magazine revolver into play and killed his father with a shot through the right breast. The boy has been held for trial and is now in the Berkeley county jail at Monck's Corner.

BLIND TIGER UNION FORMED IN ATLANTA

Code of Whistling Warns the Seller When Police Get Too Close.

Are the negro "tigers" of the city banded together into a common defense against the officers of the law?

Evidence secured last night during a visit to Ivy and Decatur streets, said to be the worst corner in the city, seems to point to the fact that the scores of whisky traffickers who congregate in that vicinity aid each other when a policeman comes into view, although they may fight over a customer. Policeman Fortson was passing up Decatur street, and as he neared the seething corner there resounded above the din of Sunday evening a sharp series of whistles.

Each whistle was similar in tone, and after the warning had been given there was a decided unrest among the crowds, and a general movement that had not been noticed before. One man who did not catch the warning offered "66" to the officer, and was promptly arrested. As he was being led to the station house he endeavored to let his incriminating evidence slip through a cleverly contrived pocket to the pavement, which would have destroyed the means of conviction. His plan was frustrated and he will face the recorder this morning.

GUILD IS MADE AMBASSADOR IN REWARD FOR PARTY SERVICE

The appointment by President Taft of Curtis Guild, Jr., former governor of Massachusetts, to be ambassador to Russia is generally conceded here to be a recognition of Mr. Guild's services to his party in his state and of his years of friendship for the president. The present ambassador to Russia, W. W. Rockhill, takes the difficult post of Turkey, which Oscar S. Straus resigned some months ago. Ex-Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., has been prominent in military affairs and politics for fifteen years. His name has often been mentioned for the diplomatic service. Last December he went to Mexico as the special ambassador from the United States to the Mexican centennial celebration, and only last month it was rumored that he was likely to return to that country as ambassador, succeeding Ambassador Wilson. Mr. Guild is a Boston newspaper man. His father, who died recently, was a Boston merchant and was editor and founder of The Boston Commercial Bulletin. The son succeeded to the control of the paper in 1902. He is 50 years old. He graduated from Harvard in 1881. When the Spanish-American war broke out he volunteered as a private, was given a commission and served with distinction on the staff of General Fitzhugh Lee. He was the first man to enter Havana after the general, and subsequently became general inspector of the Seventh infantry corps. He comes of fighting stock. His mother was a granddaughter of General Cobb, aid to Washington, and his grandmother was a daughter of Ezra Hodges, a soldier of the revolution. Mr. Guild was elected lieutenant governor of Massachusetts in 1902, became governor in 1905, was re-elected the following year and again in 1907. His governorship was marked by the passage of more new legislation than that of any previous one.

COX COLLEGE GIRLS SING EASTER SONGS AT PRISON

The prisoners at the federal penitentiary were delighted at the Easter entertainment furnished them by talent from the Atlanta Conservatory of Music and the Cox College girls yesterday afternoon. Following the regular opening service of the chapel, and an Easter hymn sung by the entire congregation, a charming program was rendered by the following able entertainers: Students' orchestra, Miss Martha Ellen Thornton, Mason Bilbro, Miss Ruth Oppenheim, Miss Daisy Strickland, Miss Mary Alex Peterson, Oliver Cooke, Kurt Mueller and Michael Banner. The flowers for the occasion were given by Irvin Gresham.

The Voice of the Press.

Gee,
Look at Me!
If I ain't free.
I'm mighty close to Liberty!
And, say,
There's no other way
For the Press to be.
See?
I am the Voice of the People!
A nation's fame
Or a nation's shame
It is my duty to proclaim.
If fame, to let the glory
Be known that all may know
And by it be encouraged.
To loftier heights to grow.
If shame, to let its sinning
Be known that all may know
And make a common effort
Against a common foe.
That's Me,
See?
That's the Press,
No more, no less!
A menace to the evil,
A bugle-call to right,
A helping hand for weakness,
A fist for vicious might.
By cripes,
Me for the Stars and Stripes!
Me for the public welfare!
Me for the great and small!
But neither big nor little,
Except for the good of all!
I'm a straight proposition,
And if I were not,
The Power of the Press
Would be handed the swat,
Sure!

—W. J. Lampton in April Lippincott's.

What the Poet Brought.

He came and went that day so quietly
I scarce knew he had come ere he was gone,
But, turning, saw that he had left upon
My hearth a casket with a golden key;
And in the box that he had brought to me
I found a crimson sunset and a dawn,
A cloud, a rainbow and a grassy lawn,
A cloth of moonbeams and a honey bee,
A rose, a ribbon and a lock of hair,
A woman's picture and a signet ring,
A silver stream within a woodlawn wild,
A dewdrop on a lily frail and fair,
The music of a bluebird in the spring—
And, best of all, the laughter of a child.

TELEGRAM DIDN'T COME, AND SHE TRIED SUICIDE

Mrs. Bodeker Expected to Hear From Her Husband, Who Left With $1,000.

Baton Rouge, La., April 16.—Failing to receive a telegram this afternoon, Mrs. Harry Bodeker, aged 22, returned to her boarding house and attempted to kill herself with a revolver. One of the boarders knocked the revolver from her grasp. She later swallowed a quantity of morphine, but the efforts of physicians, hurriedly summoned, saved her life. Her husband, who is said to be from Richmond, Va., left her several days ago with more than $1,000 cash and Mrs. Bodeker says she fears he has been killed. She said she was expecting the telegram from a brother in Columbia, S. C., together with some money.

General W. S. Muse Dead.

Cambridge, Md., April 16.—General W. S. Muse, 69 years of age, United States marine corps (retired), died here tonight of a complication of diseases. He entered the marine corps during the civil war as second lieutenant. During the Spanish-American war he was stationed at Norfolk, being sent later to Annapolis to take charge of Cervera and other Spanish officers.

Prinzess Irene Little Damaged.

Norfolk, Va., April 16.—A broken rudder frame is the only damage which the big German-Atlantic liner, the Prinzess Irene, suffered when she plowed into a sand bar off Fire Island about ten days ago. This was the amount of damage when the big liner was drydocked at Newport News this afternoon. It will require, however, between thirty and forty days to replace the broken parts of the vessel, and the cost will run a great deal over $50,000.

American Democracy.

When the constitution was finally adopted, and Washington had entered upon his first term as president, with Thomas Jefferson as secretary of state, Edmund Randolph as attorney general, and Alexander Hamilton as secretary of the treasury, there was the same effort at utilizing the talents of men who looked at governmental questions from diametrically opposite standpoints, and it soon developed the usual results of such efforts, when the special conditions which brought them together have passed away. Jefferson, naturally democratic in his tendencies, had represented the United States in France during the period which immediately preceded the French revolution, and he was largely imbued with the spirit of the times, as they existed in that country, where monarchy had been presented in its most artistic, as well as its most exasperating aspects, and all of his education, in harmony with his impulses, was against the principles of centralized power. On the other hand, John Adams, the vice president, had represented the United States at The Hague, where there appears to have been practically no centralization of power, and but little efficiency, and his letters to congress show his utter contempt of government which must consult disorganized bodies indefinitely in quest of the power and authority to do those things which are essential to a dignified national life.

"There's an infinite fund of humor in school life," said an alumni at a class of '76, at their recent reunion. "One funny incident just popped into my head, which some of you may remember. It was declamation day, and I was one of those sentenced to 'speak.' I had made a good selection, though, Whittier's poem, 'The Slave Ships,' and had come to the part where the lookout on the plague-stricken vessel sights a ship in the distance. It reads:

"'A sail! Thank God, a sail!
And as the helmsman spoke'—etc.

"I had got as far as 'A Sail! Thank God, a sail!' when the evil spirit of alliteration seized me, and before I knew it I had sung out in thrilling tones, 'And, as the salesman spoke.' It happened that the time was shortly after the panic of '73. Business was terribly depressed, and the lines I had declined exactly represented the way any salesman would have celebrated a sale of goods at that time. The whole class room, including the president, caught on, and a gale of merriment swept me ignominiously off the platform."

DULLNESS REIGNS IN STOCK MARKET

Nothing Last Week to Encourage Operations.

Important Reconstructive Force in Financial Situation Is Recognized in the Crop Prospect. Lull Has Occurred in Foreign Demand for Farm Products.

New York, April 16.—There were few happenings last week to lend impetus to operations in the stock market, which continued in the dull routine of preceding weeks. The dullness was accentuated by the expectation that the week's adjournment would be from Thursday to the following Monday, and after a rather mild attack by the bears early in the week, which was productive of but slight results, no efforts were made to disturb the level of prices.

The Crop Prospect.

An important reconstructive force in the financial situation is recognized in the crop prospect which found definition in the first report of the season by the government board on the winter wheat and rye crops. The action of the wheat market proved how far the excellent promise of that report had been anticipated in a speculative way.

That fact does not detract from the encouraging nature of an actual improvement in condition of the winter wheat crop through the winter months, contrasted with an average deterioration in the last ten years for that period of between 4 and 5 points. The increase of acreage helps to swell the estimate of a final yield of winter wheat to a figure of 77,000 bushels more than the actual harvest of winter wheat last year. Views of the crop prospects in the financial district have been influenced also by statements of prominent bankers on their return from trips through the country. Weather and soil conditions are pronounced favorable for grain and cotton crops.

Downward Course of Prices.

The recent downward course of prices of commodities finds an explanation in this exhibit. This has another side also in the inevitable tendency to restrict demand to immediate needs in a falling market, just as a rising course of prices incites to buying for prospective as well as present needs. The operations of this law seems to have much to do with the hesitation in general trade.

The March foreign trade proves that a lull has occurred in the extraordinary foreign demand for agricultural products, especially cotton, which signally expanded the country's foreign credits for several months previous. Intimations come from the steel trade that recent expansion of output is pressing on consumptive requirements. As the country's absorption of steel tonnage is said to be at a rate as high as the total mill capacity of as late a period as 1908, attention is thus called to the notable increase of facilities since that time.

Prices of Steel Products.

The stability of prices of steel products is affected by this state of affairs. A contraction in output for March by the United States Steel Corporation was indicated by an increase of 47,000 tons on the unfilled orders at the end of the month, in spite of a faling off in the rate of new orders booked during the month.

The accumulation of banking reserves and the insistent abstention from stock market speculations have had the effect of stimulating demand for mercantile paper and for short time railroad and corporation notes.

International bankers assert that foreign investment demand for securities continues good. The tide of travel abroad influenced by the coming coronation of the British sovereign, is having some effect on the foreign exchange markets.

Talks About Atlanta

DULL WEEK LIKELY IN COTTON MARKET

Unless Weather Developments of Importance Are Reported.

New Orleans, April 16.—The next week in the cotton market will probably open with considerable dullness unless weather developments of importance are reported over the holiday period in the cotton belt. Liverpool will not open until Tuesday morning, and the American markets will hardly feel like marking prices up or down to any material extent until a line is to be had on the English situation which now, from a trade standpoint, is of the greatest importance.

At the end of last week English mills were apparently doing as good a business as they have done at any time this season. If this continues this week speculation in the old crop deliveries will be stimulated.

Lancashire mills are already so well engaged ahead that the spot houses which cater to their wants in the way of raw materials have come to regard the fairly large Liverpool stock as inadequate, especially since the continent has given signs of a business revival. Should European wants in the way of spot cotton become so great as to cause renewed activity in the spot centers of the cotton belt, the activity will be immediately reflected in the future market, and it is entirely probable that speculation will become widespread.

The weather over the holidays will be of importance. The outlook was for cold weather, accompanied by more or less frost. If the cold wave should extend southward into the cotton country far enough to cause damage to young cotton, both the new and old crop months will immediately gain strength, for the old crop months are to some extent checked in their upward tendency by the expectations for a large movement of this season's growth before the first of September.

Naturally, the new crop positions will be governed in their course more by the weather of the week than by anything else. What is wanted this week is warm and dry weather that will allow planting to be carried on and will bring up seed already planted. More rain or low temperatures will have a bullish effect on prices, while fair and warm weather will stimulate short selling.

The Celtic Way.

Two Irishmen, named respectively Pat and Mike, hired out to work for a farmer who was proverbially stingy, both in regard to wages paid his help and particularly as to the amount and quality of food measured out to them at table. After many days of hard work, during which the always good appetites of the men were sharpened to the point where they could no longer endure the pangs, they entered a compact whereby they were sure of getting enough to eat at least for once. They decided that after the farmer was in bed on this particular night, they would go down to the cellar, where the good things were kept, and fill themselves. Mike, on leaving the room where he and his companion in misery slept, encouraged Pat with the assurance that he would soon return. He started for the cellar and about half way down kicked over a milk pan which had been placed on the steps to cool the milk. The noise roused the farmer, who jumped up in bed and shouted, "Who's there?" Mike merely answered "M-e-a-w!" The farmer thought that it was only a cat and settled down to sleep again. Mike found the well-stored cupboards, and filled himself, his hands and his pockets and returned to the bedroom. He said to Pat, "Now, Pat, be aisey, for on the cellar stairs they have a lot of milk pans. Be aisey that you don't hit 'em." By the time Pat reached the stairs he thought only of his gnawing hunger, and kicked every pan off the stairs. Thos angered the farmer and out of bed he jumped, and into his clothes, shouting again, "Who's there!" Pat answered, "'Tis another cat, sir."—From Norman E. Mack's National Monthly.

Yes, I have loved you long, and loved you well—

A star—peering into the dark.

"De ground hog is a mighty onsatisfactory prophet," said Uncle Eben. "If he do see his shadow, it's gwinter be bad weather; an' if he don't see it, it's bad weather already."—Washington Star.

Mrs. Newlywed—Before we were married you said that my slightest wish should be your law.

Mr. Newlywed—Exactly, my love, but you have so many vigorous and well-developed wishes that I am as yet unable to decide as to which is the slightest.—Tit-Bits.

A Disturbed Taste.

(From Norman E. Mack's National Monthly.)

The neighbors having dropped in informally upon the Suthrons during the evening, Mrs. Suthron suggests that if her husband will gather some mint from the mint bed in the garden she will mix for them a genuine Kentucky julep. Mr. Suthron, who has indulged in a matter of seven or eight genuine Kentucky juleps prior to the arrival of the guests, goes willingly in search of the desired garnishment for the drink. He remains in the garden quite awhile, and finally the others go out to ascertain what causes the delay.

"Why don't you bring the mint, dear?" his wife calls.

From somewhere in the darkness comes the testy response:

"Jane, I've eaten my way twice around this lot. I've chewed geranium leaves, grass, catnip, tulips, onions, sage and burdock, but blamed if I can find a sprig of mint anywhere."

AUCTION SALE WEDNESDAY

April 19th at 3 p. m. on the Premises

A SUBDIVISION OF THE C. G. HANNAH PROPERTY IN OAKLAND CITY.

20 CHOICE RESIDENCE LOTS AND 2 HOUSES AND LOTS.

OAKLAND CITY is now in the Tenth ward of the City of Atlanta. This property is on the most prominent corner in that section of the city, Lee street being the main highway for trade and travel between Atlanta and East Point, College Park and Hapeville and the surrounding country.

RECENT IMPROVEMENTS.

LEE STREET (the East Point road) has recently been widened to 80 feet and made into the most magnificent thoroughfare in the state. Tile sidewalks have been put down and city water mains laid, all of which are PAID for.

THE CAMPBELLTON ROAD.

JUST AT this property the Campbellton road intersects, bringing by this property the travel from the adjacent districts and from Campbell county, making this corner the logical center of that section of the city and making this corner lot the best store site in the entire community.

SOME LOGICAL REASONS WHY THIS PROPERTY IS VALUABLE AND DESIRABLE.

SURROUNDINGS: Good people (desirable neighbors) make property value. We will name a few of the good people who live near this property: Alderman I. N. Ragsdale, Col. A. P. Morgan, Mr. C. C. Mason, Mr. L. J. Callahan, Mr. George Dowman (who is now building a fine home opposite these lots), Captain J. A. Eidson, Dr. B. S. Bomar, Mr. John Mims, Dr. S. T. Whitaker, Mr. Claude A. McGinnis, Mr. A. L. Sloan and many others, too numerous to mention.

BECAUSE: It is the easiest and quickest desirable residence section reached by the best trolley lines which comes from the heart of the city. Business men and clerks can get the best car service to and from their work. A car every five minutes in each direction.

BECAUSE: It will enhance in value rapidly on account of the great wholesale and manufacturing district that is being builded along Whitehall street and the adjacent streets, and railways, which will employ thousands of well-paid men and women who will naturally want to live in this good neighborhood along the best and quickest trolley service in the city.

BECAUSE: The lots are attractive in size, and most of them lie nicely. Slightly elevated and level, fronting on thoroughfares, one of them 80 feet wide and a beauty. All inside the city limits, enjoying all the privileges and protection this great city affords.

WE ADVISE THE PURCHASE.

FOR THESE reasons we unreservedly recommend the purchase of these lots to home-seekers, speculators and builders. They will certainly continue to grow in value as this section grows in population. AS IT OF NECESSITY MUST DO.

A WORD TO THE WISE.

THE LEE STREET frontage is fine property and fully ripe for improvements.

THE CAMPBELLTON ROAD lots are a fine speculative purchase because they will greatly enhance in value, as soon as the negro houses beyond, but adjacent to them, are moved away. We believe that these houses will be removed at an early date, because the location is too valuable to continue its present use.

THE HOUSES.

THE 7-ROOM COTTAGE is on Lee street adjoining Captain Eidson's home. It is not new, but is in good repair. Located on a dandy lot, 50x310 feet to an alley, and will make anyone a comfortable and desirable home.

THE 10-ROOM HOUSE is located on Cambellton road on the last lot of the subdivision, the lot being 51x190 feet to an alley. This is a big building, recently overhauled and put in good shape. It will be the very thing for a big family. It adjoins houses now occupied by negroes, but not owned by them. We give it as our opinion that this condition will be quickly changed, but the negroes do live there now, and for this reason the purchaser of this house will pick up a BARGAIN.

A WISE RESTRICTION.

ALL OF THIS PROPERTY will be sold with a restriction which will prevent any of it ever being sold or leased or rented to any person of African descent.

THE TERMS ARE EASY.

THE TITLES ARE PERFECT.

HOW TO GET THERE—Take cars at the corner of South Forsyth and West Alabama streets, marked "East Point," "Hapeville" or "College Park," get off AT THE CAMBELLTON ROAD; you'll be there.

CRISP COUNTY MAN KILLED BY TRAIN

Body of Banks Perdue Found on G. S. & F. Tracks Near Cordele.

Cordele, Ga., April 16.—(Special.)—Banks Perdue, a white man, residing about two miles north of Cordele, was found dead near the tracks of the Georgia Southern and Florida railroad this morning, at 5 o'clock, by two negroes. The body was mangled, as if it had been ground under the wheels of the cars.

It is supposed he was killed by the southbound train, as he was on his return home from Richmond, a few miles above. He resided on C. C. Williams' place. He leaves a wife and several small children.

Major White to Visit Waycross

Robert E. Storrs, Macon.

Macon, Ga., April 16.—(Special.)—The funeral of the late Robert E. Storrs was held from his late residence, 317 Adams street, this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Interment was made at Riverside cemetery. The members of the Macon Bar Association attended in a body.

BAR COUNCILMEN FROM COMMITTEES

May Prevent Members Appearing Before Committees.

There is considerable talk among council members of putting a stop to councilmen appearing before council committees of which they are not members. Recently it has come to pass that whenever a committee meets to consider any important matter, several councilmen who are not members of the committee appear, and not only make speeches, but seem to want to take charge of the whole matter.

It is claimed that much of this is done purely as a matter of politics. Those who are opposed to councilmen "butting in" on committees say that the practice is both unwise and unparliamentary, because councilmen are the final jury, and should not take either one side or the other on any question until the committees make reports to council.

CANADA WILL RATIFY RECIPROCITY PACT

As Soon as Favorable Action Is Taken by the American Congress.

Ottawa, Ont., April 16.—A favorable report on the reciprocity agreement with the United States is looked for by members of the Dominion government not long after parliament reassembles Wednesday. The rapid progress being made at Washington and the prediction that the agreement will be before the senate by next Thursday have been noted here with satisfaction by the government's supporters. Settlement of the reciprocity issue in Canada, they believe now depends primarily upon action at Washington. Any assurance that congress will ratify the agreement may be coupled, they say, with the assurance that the Canadian parliament will do its part.

The Canadian government, backed by a majority of more than forty in the house, is pledged and anxious to put the agreement through as soon as the conservative opposition permits a vote. Ratification then by the senate would be merely a matter of form, since the government's supporters in that body outnumber the conservatives three to one.

Until, however the agreement is ratified by both American branches the fight against it in the Canadian house will be continued by Mr. Borden's adherents.

GEORGIA LIBRARIANS TO GATHER IN ATHENS

Meeting Will Be Attended by 80 Librarians and Number of Other Distinguished Guests.

Athens, Ga., April 16.—(Special.)—The Georgia State Library Association meets in annual session at the chapel of the University of Georgia Monday evening, and will be a notable gathering. There will be from sixty to eighty librarians present, and quite a number of other distinguished guests.

The chief address of the opening session at the chapel will be that by Henry E. Legler, head of the Chicago public library, and one of the leading librarians of the world.

The address of Dr. Louis R. Wilson, librarian of the University of North Carolina, on "Library Administration," Tuesday afternoon will be, also, a splendid feature.

FRED ELLS FLIES FOR SAVANNAHIANS

Private Exhibition Given Before City Officials and Newspaper Men.

Savannah, Ga., April 16.—(Special.)—Just to show that he really can fly Fred Ells, in a Curtiss-Farman biplane, made a successful flight this afternoon in the presence of Mayor Tiedeman, other city officials, and newspaper men.

Ells disappointed a large crowd Saturday afternoon by going up only about thirty feet. He had engine trouble, and came to mother earth in a hurry. To demonstrate that he can fly he gave the private exhibition this afternoon.

Ells, in a biplane, and J. C. Downey, in a Bleriot monoplane, promise flights daily for the rest of the week.

MISS VINNING MARRIES MR. OSCAR L. KELLEY

A delightful Easter wedding was the marriage of Miss Willie May Vinning and Mr. Oscar L. Kelley, held yesterday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, in the home of the bride's parents, Captain and Mrs. W. S. Vinning, at 89 Powell street. After the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. J. F. Edens, Jr., pastor of the Ingleside Baptist church, a reception was held, during which a luncheon was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelley will be at home to friends after April 23 at their residence at 475 East Fair street. Mr. Kelley is one of the well-known young men of the city, and holds a responsible position with a local transfer company.

L. Troutman, in a series of protracted meetings to last through this week. Dr. Robins was once pastor of this church and was warmly welcomed back to Athens.

THE COTTON CROP AREA.

During many, many years I do not recall a time when there was so little said, or at least printed, in the way of advice and warning against planting too much cotton. There may be something ominous in this fact. Is there a large interest in the country anxious for a reduction in the price of cotton, and has this interest power or influence sufficient to silence, in great degree, the advisory press? We all know that the cotton manufacturing business is "marking time," so to speak, and dividends are getting to be as "scarce as hen's teeth;" but there is no positive indication that the mills are urging an increased area. Probably they would be glad to get cheaper cotton, in view of the fact that they cannot boost the market for manufactured goods to a point at which there will be a dividend-paying profit in the business. I have heard some of them say that cotton is "too high, anyhow," but that position seems hardly logical. One of two things is certainly true, viz., that either cotton is too high or goods are too low—from the manufacturers' viewpoint, at least. "They say" (some of them) that if they could buy cotton at 2 or 3 cents less per pound they could run all their spindles on full time and declare dividends for their anxious and hungry stockholders. Doubtless that is true. But from the cotton-growers' standpoint such a decline in the market for raw cotton, while it would benefit the manufacturers a good many millions of dollars, the benefit would be at the expense—at least in anticipation—of the growers. That's the way the latter very naturally look at it.

The growers consider that they are now having their innings, after a long term of low prices for their staple money crop. Many of them feel that it will require several years—a good many of them—of present prices to make good—recoup, I believe is the word—the losses of the past twenty or twenty-five years. They are not willing to be roped off like an eager suckling calf, before they have had "their fill."

Now what is the remedy for this state of affairs? Who put up the price of cotton? Probably the attitude of the farmers may have had something to do with it, but somebdy had to buy the cotton, and who but the mills and their agents have bought the cotton; and have the mills not bid against each other—in effect—and this boosted the price; and have they not—in effect, at least—undersold each other in the effort to get rid of their manufactured stocks and thus get back the money they paid for the raw cotton? Of course they have. Then where lies the trouble and what is the remedy? I confess that I do not know—do you? It seems that the great shirt-wearing and sheet-using millions are not wearing out their shirts and sheets fast enough. In other words, consumption of cotton goods has not kept pace with production and manufacture. And what is to be done about it. It is certainly an unusual, an anomalous situation, and nobody seems able to solve it. It seems to be an insolvable problem by any outside efforts.

Maybe it will solve itself—this problem. I believe it will, and that is the only solution. Of course the solution will have direct and indirect help. The farmers themselves will be encouraged, if not impelled, to produce more cotton. They will do it—not for patriotism's sake but—for the sake of having more cotton to sell at present prices. That is one way to help untie the knot without intending it—a sort of natural way. Another way would be for the large dealers in cotton goods to stock up heavily in view of anticipated rise in prices of cotton goods. This would relieve the cotton mills and have the effect of advancing prices of goods. The "boll weevil is coming," and its coming seems as sure as death itself. Mississippi is already invaded, Alabama and Georgia will follow, then the Carolinas and then—the jig's up so far as big crops of cotton are concerned, and people will have to pay more for cotton goods, or go without.

Will this article be called idle speculation? Probably it will be, but I am not prophesying, nor have I advised or warned. In fact I know but little of the present and nothing of the future. I will, however, advise the farmer that the time of safety is along the path of decreased cost of production, by means of better preparation, better (more judicious) fertilization, better seed, more grain and live stock, farm implements, diversification. What the farmer wants is safety, and as nearly as may be, certainty of results. Plenty of hog and hominy, abundance of home-raised supplies, conservation and improvement of the soil by demonstated, scientific methods, will result in comfort, plenty and profit, even if cotton falls to 10 cents (which it may do), or go to 20 cents (which is not likely).

R. J. REDDING,
Griffin, Ga.

AN ITCHY SOIL.

"B. R.," Montezuma, Ga.—I have 8 or 10 acres of land that was an old cypress pond and has been drained about 30 years. When this land is dry and dusty, it causes such a terrible itching and burning that a person can't stand to make a crop on it. The soil is very dark and varies from one to three feet deep and has a spotted, pipe-clay subsoil. Is there any remedy for this trouble? What would be the best crops to put on this? Enclosed find stamped envelope for reply.

Answer—I am not able to say what causes the itching effect of the soil in question. I have never before heard or read of such an effect this side of the alkali soils of the desert regions of the west. Nor can I say what crops would do best on such a soil. Why not find out by actual field trial? I would suggest that it is probably deficient in phosphoric acid and potash, but has a sufficient supply of nitrogen. Possibly liming would be in order, and maybe it needs underdraining. You see, you do not say what has been your experience with different crops on the land. I think oats would do well on it, if properly fertilized—especially with potash and lime.

"HIGH GRADE," "STANDARD" AND "LOW GRADE."

L. Vautrot, Sunset, La.—(1.) I would like to know what this ready-mixed stuff analyzes. It has printed on sack "Royal Dissolved Bone," and the following: Water, sol. phos. acid., 12 per cent; beverted phos. acid, 2 per cent; available, 14 per cent; insoluble, 2 per cent. Total phos. acid, 16 per cent. Would you call that high-grade? I want to use it under cotton in medium and black land. I get enough weed, but the fruit don't stay on enough to make three-quarters of a bale per acre. (2.) Do navy beans vine or bush? And do they make well in the southern part of your state?

Answer—(1.) You have stated the analysis in your letter and yet you ask, "What will the ready-mixed stuff analyze?" It is not a mixed stuff at all, but is a simple acid phosphate, containing 14 per cent of available phosphoric acid—which the sum of the 12 per cent soluble and 2 per cent reverted. The "total phosphoric acid, 16 per cent," is misleading, because the "2 per cent insoluble"—which is practically of no value, has been added to the available to make it appear higher—to a "sucker." Under the Georgia fertilizer law any acid phosphate containing 14 per cent or more of available phosphoric may be branded as "high grade." One that is below 14 but not lower than 12, is "standard," and one below 12 is "low grade." But are you to use nothing but acid phosphate? You may, if you intend a very light application, but not otherwise.

(2.) I am not aware that the so-called "navy" bean, or field bean, is grown to any extent in southern Georgia, or elsewhere in the south; but I know of no reason why, unless it be because of the prevalance of bean weevils in this section, which gives little trouble in the north.

THE TAMWORTH HOG.

A. W. Blackmar, Columbus, Ga.: In your last Monday's paper I notice a description you have of the Tamworth, in which you say the color is solid red. This may cause someone to be dissatisfied with their stock, as occasionally they have black spots on them.

I quote you from Mr. William Dietrich's book description of the Tamworth:

"The color of the Tamworth is a red, resulting from a golden red hair on a flesh-colored skin. Occasionally there appears a small black spot on the skin, which may also be covered with black hair. It is the tendency of breeders to breed the Tamworth with the pure red color, but the policy of black spot is sound."

Answer—In my reply to Mrs. L. T. in issue of April 3, which you kindly criticise, I endeavored to compress the description of the Tamworth hog into so small a space as possible, because of the crowded condition of my department. I will add, however, that in the "standard of excellence for Tamworth swine" adopted by the National Pig Breeders' Association of Great Britain, of the twenty points listed the very first is: Color, golden red hair on a flesh-colored skin, free from black. It is admitted, however, that the shade varies considerably in individuals, and a chestnut shade is very common. In aged animals it is not uncommon to see such a dark shade of chestnut that the casual observer might mistake it for a dull black. So "there you are." "When doctors differ," etc., not claiming expert knowledge, I do not presume to decide which is correct. I understand the objection to Mrs. T.'s pair of Tamworths to refer to the general farm or types, and not to mere flesh marks, for it is probable that not one of them was familiar with the standard points of the breed.

To M. S. Farmer, Swainsboro, Ga.—The "weeder," of which there are a number of different makes, has been used for perhaps a dozen years—more or less. I have used them a good deal and unhesitatingly indorse the efficiency of the implement. Before I got a weeder I had used a slant tooth harrow (a section of a Thomas smoothing harrow), with good success, for the same work now better done with a weeder. As a rule the weeder does better when run squarely or diagonally across the rows than when run lengthwise. You don't have to manage to keep it from dragging up the young plants; it will pull up or cover up an occasional plant, but the injury from this source is entirely negligible. I consider it a very valuable and efficient implement. It should be run across the field before a crust forms after a rain, when the effect will be to destroy weeds before they come up and at the same time open the soil to the free ingress of air and prevent excessive evaporation of moisture. I have never used but one make—the Halleck—and am not prepared to say which is the best. It should be remembered, however, that you cannot keep a field entirely clean of weeds by means of the weeder alone; I have tried it.

T. B. Smith, McShan, Okla.—I want to know if there is any kind of grass or clover or anything I could sow on hillsides in my cotton when I lay it by that would come up and keep land from washing during winter months. And would it do much good? I want to plant this land to corn or cotton next year.

Answer—Yes, there are a number of plants suitable for the purpose of "cover" crops, as they are called. If the land is fresh and good you may sow crimson clover, twenty-five pounds, or hairy vetch, fifty pounds, per acre at about the time of first picking of the cotton in September. If thin or ordinary soil, sow common rye, say three to four pecks per acre. Such cover crops are advised as very helpful in preventing washing and leaching and in building up the soil.

KAINIT TO PREVENT RUST.

B. H. Edmondston, Summerville, Ga. I am going to use some kainit (together with other fertilizers) on my cotton land this year to prevent rust. Will you please tell me how much kainit to use per acre, when and how to apply it.

Answer—Where the land that is to be fertilized for cotton is known to produce rust the kainit employed to prevent rust should be a component part of the fertilizer and should be applied, as usual, before planting. In other words all the potash required in the total fertilizer should be supplied by kainit. What you want is a fertilizer that will analyze about 10-3-5, or 9-2.70-4.50, 8-2.40-4.00, or any other grade preserving about the some proportions, and of which the potash is supplied by kainit. To secure this I advise that you buy some 16 per cent acid C. S. meal, high grade and kainit and do your own mixing, and save two or three dollars per ton by so doing. Say:

Acid phosphate, 16 per cent	1,000 lbs
C. S. meal, high grade	800 lbs
Kainit, 12 per cent	700 lbs
Total	2,500 lbs

This would analyze about 12-3.75-6.40 a very high grade, higher than 10-3-5, but maintaining about some proportions.

FORMULA FOR COTTON.

H. H. Dickson, Lovejoy, Ga.—I have about 3½ acres gray land with reddish clay that yielded last year 6,200 pounds seed cotton of the Schley variety. This cotton followed pea stubble and was fertilized with about one ton of a mixture, for which you gave formula. I will again plant this land to cotton. What grade of fertilizer and how much per acre would you advise using to secure largest profitable yield? Would you advise using Peruvian guano at $35? I do not know the analysis of the Peruvian.

Answer—I see no reason for materially modifying the formula you used last year, which was probably "Formula No. 2, for Cotton on Old, Worn Upland," possibly modified by reducing the quantity of cotton seed meal. No pea crop having intervened since the last crop of cotton, I would reduce the cotton seed meal to about 500 pounds, making it: Acid phosphate, 14 per cent, 1,000 pounds (or 875 pounds of 16 per cent); 500 pounds high-grade cotton seed meal, 374 pounds muriate of potash. I would apply the whole of the formula to about two acres. Not knowing the analysis of the Peruvian guano (there is more than one grade) I cannot advise as to the expediency of using it. I know that it (Peruvian guano) possesses no advantage over formula No. 2, unless it be cheaper per unit of plant food.

CORN ON PIPE CLAY SUBSOIL LAND.

T. J. Pair, Decatur, Ga. I see in The Weekly Constitution where you give formula to suit certain lands, so I come to you for advice. The land has been cultivated about 23 or 24 years and has never been planted in anything but corn. It is branch bottom. The top soil is black and very thin, with a pipe clay subsoil. It is now covered in wild onions and cress or wild lettuce. Up to 6 years ago, we made very good crops of corn with only lot manure but since that time have had to use some commercial fertilizer, as we could not get the lot manure; so we haven't made much corn since and last year nothing but nubbins. The stalk grows very large and very tall but no corn like it used to grow. It's hard to keep cockleburrs down. It grows crab grass and swamp grass that is fine, what does it need to make it produce ears of corn. We have but little lot manure. We want to buy the materials and mix the fertilizers this year.

Answer—Quite a number of times recently I have answered similar inquiries as to how to fertilize corn or cotton on soils that produce large stalks or "weed" and little fruit. What your soil needs is phosphoric acid and not nitrogen. Stable manure is not what is needed and its application would not be effective. I have many times advised that my regular "Formula No. 1, for corn on old worn upland" should be modified when to be used on fresh lands, dark colored, moist bottom lands, or wherever and whenever the soil is know to produce large weed and little fruit. That formula is: 1,000 pounds of 14 per cent acid phosphate, 1,280 pounds of C. S. meal and 34 pounds of muriate of potash. The modification I advise is to reduce the C. S. acid phosphate and muriate. Probably meal by one-fourth to one-half, or have it out altogether and apply only the a 10-4, or 10-3, acid potash would be all that is needed. I would break the land down to the clay, then lay off 4-foot rows, put in 300 or 400 pounds per acre, bed on it, making the beds pretty high and leave a good, open water-furrow. This should be done at once, or a week or two before planting.

Immediately before planting run a harrow lengthwise over the beds, open and plant along the center of the beds and needs livening. Possibly, also, it I use to get rid of wild garlic and wild onions, which is to simply to dig up by the roots every plant as soon as it appears above ground and destroy the bulblets by either crushing them on the near-by hard garden walk, or putting in the stove furnace. I have conquored nut grass in that way by persistent watchfulness and thorough work. Such pests make very slow headway in a well-tilled garden—one that is constantly occupied with vegetables that require frequent cultivation. A sweet potato crop is one of the best to smother out nut grass and, presumably, blue bottles.

I suspect that the soil may be sour needs to be underdrained. Livening should (preferably) be done in the fall or early winter, spreading 10 to 20 bushels of air staked lime per acre on the freshly plowed soil.

Mrs. John W. W., Fairburn, Ga.—Inclosed I send a plant called here blue bottle, which is a nuisance in our garden. Some years ago we planted them along the walk with other flowers, but since they multiply both by seed and bulb, they have spread over the entire half acre garden and crowded out garden vegetables. We have twice sown the ground with peas, hoping to kill the blue bottles by shading them with the vines. After the vines were cut for forage we kept pigs in the garden to eat the bulbs. They loosened the soil deep and ate the larger bulbs, but the smaller ones are growing as if they had been carefully cultivated. Will you be kind enough to tell us how to get rid of this pest? Any suggestions you offer will be greatly appreciated.

Answer—I know of no better way to destroy this plant than the method

WANTS MORE THAN ONE BALE PER ACRE.

W. C. Garrett, Campton, Ga.—(1) I have bought a high-grade guano, 12—3—3. Do you think it more economical than a 10—2—2? It cost $5.50 more per ton. I thought I would apply 400 to 600 pounds per acre. Do you think it would pay me to use that much? Land is mulatto with stiff red clay. I used 400 pounds per acre of 10—3—3 last year and made one bale per acre. I want to increase my yield this year.

Answer—One ton of 12—3—3 is worth at least $6.50 more than a ton of 10—2—2. Therefore a ton of 12—3—3 at no greater price than $5.50 over the cost of a ton of 10—2—2 means a saving of $1 per ton. I think it would pay you to use 600 to 800 pounds per acre on your land provided you shall have plowed it deep and pulverized it well. That amount should give you a yield of 1½ bales per acre if a good year for cotton.

(1) RICKETS OF PIGS. (2) FERTILIZER FOR CORN.

R. W. L., Felton, Ga.—(1) My father's nice Berkshire sow brought nine pigs. One was dead and thre of the others have the rickets. They shake all the time like they had the palsy. What is the trouble, and will they get all right?

(2) I have two acres of land I intend to plant in corn April 15. I bedded it with two-horse Oliver (four furrows) in January about 10 inches deep, run out the middle 12 inches deep, bedded back, run out the row 14 inches deep. I want to put manure in and mix well. Teh land made 1,000 pounds cotton to the acre last year with 400 pounds of guano. I want to make a good yield. How much guano would you use and how would you apply it and would you use any soda? I have the guano, the ground is in good shape.

Answer—(1) Rickets is a disease of young pigs and is thought to be due to errors in diet and to indigestion, together with non-assimulation of food and lactic acid fermentation, as a result of which there is a lack of sufficient lime in the bones and they remain too soft. The treatment consists in close attention to the diet and to that of the dam when the pigs are too young to eat much. The food should consist of concentrated nutritious nitrogenous food, such as scalded oats or oatmeal, wheat middlings and bran and milk and ground bone meal two or three times a week. Also lime water. Medicinally give one-dram doses two or three times a day of precipitated phosphate of calcium, together with one-drop doses of oil of phosphorous. The sow should be fed on oats, wheat middlings and bran. Alfalfa meal would also be excellent.

(2) With the good preparation of the land you might well apply 400 to 500 pounds of high-grade, highly-ammoniated fertilizer or an ordinary cotton fertilizer (to be bedded on) and nitrate of soda at and after planting, say 12 pounds for each 100 pounds bedded on.

RHEUMATISM, PROBABLY, OF HOGS.

C. Birch, Hiawassee, Ga.—I would like for you to tell me what ails my hogs. The trouble seems to be entirely in their feet and legs. They first begin to get lame and in a few days get past walking. The hock joint swells more or less. When I catch one and worry it, it is sure to get past walking. They always eat heartily. Please tell me what the disease is and a remedy.

Answer—Your hogs probably have rheumatism. The treatment is as follows: In the early stages give each hog from one to two ounces of Epsom salts, or two drops of croton oil in a spoonful of sweet oil. Follow the purging with 10 to 15 drops (according to age and size) of oil of gaultheria in a spoonful of sweet oil or raw linseed oil 3 times a day. Iodide of potassium in 5 to 10 grain doses 3 times a day is also useful, or 10 grain doses of bicarboniate of potash with the food 3 times a day. The swollen joints may be bathed 3 times a day with a lotion of 1 ounce tincture of opium (laudanum), 1 ounce fluid extract belladonna and half pint of water. If the swollen parts are neither hot nor tender, rub in on them a little of one part cantharides to four parts lard, and repeat in a week, if necessary. In mild cases camphorated soap liniment well rubbed in will often relieve the pain.

We Are Going to Sell the Lots in WEST END PARK

Mr. Davis, the president of this company, has made one of the most beautiful suburban sub-divisions by laying out graceful streets, putting down tile sidewalks, cement curbing, water and sewer mains, giving to the public every modern convenience.

The sub-division is inside the city limits, and lot owners will have the advantage of public schools, police and fire protection, electric lights, and all similar city conveniences.

The lots lie just a step beyond the present terminus of the Whitehall to West End car line, and Mr. Arkwright has stated to us that this line will be extended along Cascade Avenue within a short while.

The plats are now ready for distribution, and we would be glad if you would call and get one, and if you will simply examine the property before the day of sale we know you will be present to bid on the lots.

There will be no limit, no by-bidding, but simply an old fashion, honest auction sale. The terms are one-half cash, balance one and two years with seven per cent interest.

FORREST & GEORGE ADAIR

If you have not already done so, take the North Decatur car line, which leaves the corner of Peachtree and Edgewood Avenue every few minutes, and go out to Kirkwood and examine the sub-division recently made of

Sutherland

On Tuesday, April 25th, at 3:30 o'clock, we are going to sell about twenty-five of these lots.

They all have sidewalks, curbing, sewer and water mains, and beautiful two-story houses have already been built on the adjoining lots.

No section of Atlanta is attracting more attention than that between Atlanta and Decatur. In every other direction desirable property has almost gone beyond the reach of the man of moderate means. Two years from now it will be impossible for you to secure a lot comparable to these for two or three times the amount they will bring now.

The man with even a little wisdom, who wants to provide for his family a permanent home amid the most desirable and attractive surroundings, will watch this sale. The titles are perfect, and the terms, one-third cash, balance one and two years with six per cent interest.

FORREST & GEORGE ADAIR

Go out on the Gordon street car line to WEST END PARK, and look at the lots we are going to sell at auction on Thursday afternoon, April 20, at 3:30 o'clock.

This is the very highest class of residential property, and there will be no other opportunity offered to secure these lots at your own price.

Terms—One-third cash and the balance in one and two years, with 7% interest.
